Everything Breaks Loose Stambouliisky—Democrat Another Wage Cut Lawyers Rarely Kill

W. R. Hearst, in an interview given in London to the London Evening Standard, advocates "a co-operative agreement between all white peoples."

He also suggests, which, of course, strikes the English as most unreasonable, that any white race agreement or any arrangement should be headed and largely controlled by the United States, inasmuch as this is the biggest and most powerful country in the world.

Hearst is about the first well-known American to tell the English that he considers his own country more important than England. And it is only fair to say that such talk is what the English admire. They are glad to use American Anglo-maniacs, but they despise them.

Old craters that have long been asleep on the island of Hawaii have suddenly come to life. Streams of lava are pouring down. What happens in Hawaii, far off in the Pacific, happens in Italy and other places. Hell seems to be breaking loose inside of the earth as well as on the surface.

Blessed peace seems a long way from this planet.

Bad conditions in Ireland, where the north and south are drifting closer and closer to real and violent civil war. In such a civil war there is little doubt that the English influence and power would be with the north of Ireland.

You read already about various "aliients" being captured in a struggle which is in reality a religious struggle. A great calamity that war of that kind should survive into the twentieth century.

Interesting person is Stambouliisky, Premier and actual ruler of Bulgaria. He says Bulgaria will pay her debts, but will compel those who brought on the war to pay the debts. That includes profiteers and others. We don't do that here.

This same eccentric peasant ruler says he intends to make the King President. And he will give votes to women, but only to women that work for a living.

In this and other favored lands the notion is that governing should be done by those who do NOT work for a living. And that is how it usually is done.

Another cut in railroad wages is coming; it will save fifty millions a year more for owners of railroad stocks and bonds. This time the railway shop men will stand the cut. If railroad management knew how to increase efficiency as it knows how to cut wages, how efficient it would be!

Yesterday morning, in England, they hanged Major Armstrong for poisoning his wife. Armstrong is the first English lawyer executed for murder. Whether he was the first guilty of murder is not known. Their knowledge of wills already made or of wills ordered, might provide lawyers with temptation to murder. On the other hand, their knowledge of law might be a sufficient warning.

In proportion to their numbers among the so-called "educated class," doctors are most frequently tried for murder. Of three electrocutions witnessed by this writer, two were electrocutions of doctors.

Senator Capper has a new bill to prevent "futures trading," which means gambling in foodstuffs.

There is an old French law that punishes with imprisonment at hard labor anybody that conspires to raise the price of grain. There might be something in that law that our Supreme Court would not declare unconstitutional.

This news ought to interest the President and every American: Senator Bertrandas went up three thousand feet and fired five bombs at a little imitation warship only twenty-five feet long and seventy-five feet wide. Of the five bombs three struck the target and exploded.

All five would have hit a full-sized battleship. And one single bomb, dropping into the water within a few feet of the ship, would destroy any battleship afloat.

What's the use of putting forty million dollars into a single battleship, when a four-thousand-dollar flying machine might destroy half a dozen such ships?

And what insanity it is, with war all over the world, not to develop to the utmost the two new fighting weapons, aeroplanes and submarines?

Germany will get a big loan and then says she will meet her reparation debt. It is a little hard to understand, lending money that you may get your debt paid. But it may work out, like using a small fish for bait to catch a big fish. The strange thing is the fear in Germany that greater prosperity may cause a rise in the value of German money. If the mark goes up, labor goes up, and German industry must make less.

Samuel Untermyer suspects the "judicial psychology is influenced by wealth." That is putting it mildly. The highest

MURDER CHARGE MAY FOLLOW WARD CLEW

By International News Service.

White Plains, N. Y., June 1.—Developments tending to discredit the story of Walter S. Ward, millionaire vice-president of the Ward Baking Company, and self-confessed slayer of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., are expected soon, it was revealed today by a Westchester County official.

If these developments turn out according to expectations, the official declared, Ward would be re-arrested on a murder charge. At present he is at liberty on $50,000 bail with only the charge of manslaughter over him.

Operatives of a nationally known detective agency are scouring every public and private hospital in the metropolitan district for a second man who was said to have been wounded by the young millionaire on the same night Peters was shot to death.

The Westchester County authorities are bending all their energies to running down the report that Peters, instead of being shot to death on the Kenisco reservoir road, while he and two companions were demanding $75,000 blackmail from Ward, was really killed in the library of Ward's home at New Rochelle and that the body was carried to the lonely road in an auto. It was this version which said that a second man had been shot by Ward and wounded through the shoulder.

Private detectives are extending the search as far east as Stamford, Ct.

District Attorney Weeks said he hoped for an early solution of the blackmail and murder mystery.

Woman Paid $10,000 by Wards Located

Los Angeles, June 1.—Miss Martha Kendall, who once filed a suit charging criminal conspiracy against Walter S. Ward, has been located in the Hollywood district.

The police at Pittsburgh are said to have urged the White Plains authorities to hunt for Miss Kendall in the hope she could aid them.

Miss Kendall, a modiste, said she had not seen Ward for several years since shortly after his father, George S. Ward, a wealthy baker, settled with her out of court on her $10,000 suit for damages against his son. She asserted the younger Ward had broken into her apartment and attempted to kidnap her.

"I can throw light upon the mystery, all right," said Miss Kendall. "I know a few things those interested in prosecuting Mr. Ward would like to know. I'll tell all I know if they ask me—not till then."

She said she concurred in the opinion of a woman friend in New York, as expressed in a letter received today. She quoted this friend

Attendance May Be Restricted, Corporation Secretary Announces

All over the East today men of the Jewish race were asking each other that question, following an amazing announcement that Harvard was preparing to restrict the number of students entering her portals each year.

The announcement specifically mentioned Jews. It did not refer to any other race or religion.

The "official" reason for the proposed restriction is that students are coming in too rapidly and the college can't care for them all.

But leading Jews are not backward in saying the real reason is that Jewish students are entering in such large numbers as to disturb the numerical preponderance of young men of "the old stock"—members of old New England families or of the aristocratic families of the South.

Harvard College does not plan to bar Jews. But it may restrict the number admitted.

Frederick L. Allen, secretary to the corporation, from whose offices all Harvard publicity emanates, says this is the meaning of the official statement which caused a stir over the country today.

Mr. Allen admitted the authenticity of the statement announcing the plan of Harvard for entrance restrictions. He said it mentioned Jews only and no other race or religion because of the fact the percentage of Jews in entering classes was increasing. "Mathematically, they will have to suffer along with other students," he said, "but with no thought of discrimination."

CAUSED A FUROR.

Nevertheless, the fact Jews, and Jews only, were mentioned in Harvard's official statement caused a furore. Harvard has several Jews on its faculty and numbers among its graduates Jews who are among the leaders in professional, business and charitable affairs of the nation.

Dean Chester Noyes Greenough made the following statement:

"Harvard will be the same tomorrow as it is today. No one can say that for the next twenty-five years Harvard will bar certain men and admit others. No decision has been arrived at in the matter of who shall or who shall not be barred.

"Harvard does not wish to bar anyone, but the problem of too great numbers in before us and must be

ATTACKED GIRL IN HOME

Posses, Summoned by Church Bells, Scour Countryside for Assailant

Haverhill, June 1.—Jennie Doucette, a seventeen-year-old schoolgirl, was brutally attacked by a man four times her age, in her home in West Boxford today.

According to the girl's story her assailant was the same man who a month ago attempted to attack her on a lonely lane near her home. She does not know his name.

Clanging church bells and shrieking whistles announced the outrage to the townspeople, and volunteer posses, several hundred strong, began a search of the countryside.

State police and deputy sheriffs were sent for by the town officials, who feared violence to the girl's assailant if he were caught.

The attack on Miss Doucette was made while her mother was at a neighbor's and she was alone in the house.

She describes the man as about sixty years old and shabbily dressed. He was in the house and approaching her before she was aware of him. A fruit pedlar found her, half dead from fright and ill treatment, on the piazza of her home, and telephoned to Colby's store for help. Habitues of the store rang the bell of the Congregational Church and collected a crowd of determined men.

BRITISH SHIP ASHORE; 100 ABOARD IN PERIL

Auckland, New Zealand, June 1 (By the Associated Press).—The 12,000-ton British steamer Wiltshire, with a crew of nearly 100, is ashore on the New Zealand coast in a perilous position today, with small prospects of rescue because of tempestuous seas. She struck near the barrier reef in a heavy gale. She broke in two today. She carried no passengers.

Two New Zealand steamers, standing nearby, have been unable to approach the Wiltshire. It is feared the rescuers will be unable to do much until the weather abates.

TELEPHONE GIRL FRUSTRATES ROBBERY

Attleboro, June 1.—For the fifth time in as many years Miss Emma Jameson, night operator in the local telephone exchange, has frustrated attempted night robberies.

Today she is the town's heroine and in possession of a fat check following her feat early today when she telephoned police as bandits crashed a plate glass window in a store adjoining the telephone building and were in the act of making a wholesale haul of automobile tires.

Police arrived and after a hand-to-hand fight, during which two revolvers were knocked from the hands of the bandits, arrested two men and a moment later a third man.

In court today the men were held in $4,000 each for the Grand Jury on charges of having loaded revolvers in their possession, entering a place at night, attempted robbery assault and several other minor charges.

They gave Taunton as their home and their names are: Charles Fontain, twenty-three years old, of No. 70 Main street; Francis Hanrahan, eighteen, of No. 14 Church street, and James McCready of No. 13 Cranum street.

The store broken into was that of A. R. Macomber, who deals in automobile accessories. Today he presented Miss Jameson with a check.

CALLS ON STATE TO BUY ROAD

Immediate Reduction to Car Riders Is Provided in Proposed Legislation

A bill providing for complete public ownership of the Boston Elevated and immediate restoration of the five-cent fare was today filed with the House Rules Committee by Attorney Grenville S. MacFarland of the Boston American.

It was one of two fare reduction bills prepared by Mr. MacFarland and submitted to the committee to carry out the will of the 160,000 people of Greater Boston who signed the Boston American's 5-cent fare petitions.

Both bills, in unmistakable language, provide for decreases in the fares. They are submitted to the committee at today's public hearing as supplemental or alternative to Mayor Curley's bill.

The first provides for complete public ownership. The second provides for immediate removal of many of the expenses of operation and maintenance that benefit the autoist, the pedestrian and the community as a whole, but which are borne entirely by the car rider.

WOULD INSURE BONDS.

The public ownership bill directs the State Treasurer to invite proposals at once for the sale of the common stock of the Elevated. If a majority of the common stock of the Elevated was offered for sale within ninety days the treasurer would purchase it at once, issuing serial bonds of the State to make the purchase.

If minority holders who later offered their stock for sale would be paid the average price paid for the majority of the holdings.

If less than a majority of outstanding shares was offered for sale within 90 days, the bill provides that the State Treasurer shall take immediate steps to acquire in the name and on behalf of the Commonwealth all the property and franchises of the Boston Elevated Railway Company through the exercise of the power of eminent domain as provided by the public control law."

This taking of the property would be made on a basis of payment to be determined by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Governor's Council.

ORDERS FIVE-CENT FARE.

Under public ownership, the State would receive the dividends then earned on the common stock. These dividends would be used by the State to pay the interest on the bonds necessary to be issued to buy the road.

The fourth and final section of the public ownership bill contains this provision:

"Upon the acquisition by the Commonwealth of a majority interest in the common stock of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, the trustees shall at once reduce the fare to five cents." Any deficit arising from the operation of the road under the five-cent fare would be advanced by the State Treasurer, the State to be reimbursed by the cities and towns in which the road operates.

In the other bill, filed by Mr. MacFarland in the interest of the 150,000 signers of the Boston American 5-cent fare petition, it is provided that the car riders would be exempted from paying the State taxes on the Elevated in any year in which the net earnings of the road failed to reach 6 per cent.

The car riders would also be relieved from the payment of the corporate franchise taxes.

REMIT SUBWAY RENTALS.

The car riders, under the terms of the bill, would be no longer compelled to pay the cost of removing the snow from the streets in the Winter months. They now pay that entire cost, despite the fact that the snow clearances open up the highways to the use of the auto and the truck and the pedestrian, as well as the car rider, who pays the entire cost.

Complete remission of the subway rentals, now amounting to $2,500,000 a year and paid entirely by the car rider, is provided in another section of the bill. That cost falls upon the rider, although if the tunnel and subway cars and trains were placed back on Boston's narrow streets, the auto driver and the pedestrian and the storekeeper would be unable to transact the ordinary business in the city.

$5,000,000 YEARLY.

Provision is also made for the relief of the car-rider from the payment of the rentals of the Cambridge tunnel, which is owned by the State. This section says that its provision shall be submitted to the vote of the people of Cambridge, Newton, Arlington, Belmont and Watertown, who are served especially by the Cambridge tunnel.

The bill specifically directs the trustees to apply all these things to the reduction of the carfare and "to no other use."

It has been estimated that these and other savings, provided in the bill, would reduce the expense of the car-rider in excess of $3,000,000 a year. The result would be a substantial reduction in the carfares.

"CLASS LEGISLATION."

Cities and towns on the fringe of Boston sent strong delegations to the hearing to oppose Mayor Curley's bill.

The burden of their complaint was that the bill was class legislation and unjust to property owners.

Some declared that conditions on the Elevated system were all right and the trustees should be given more time to bring order out of chaos.

Speaker B. Loring Young presided. Representative John W. McCormick of South Boston, a Curley adherent and 5-cent fare advocate, cross-examined the remonstrants at length.

Paul M. White, town counsel for Arlington, was the first to be heard against the bill, and in his argument laid down the plan of campaign of those who are fighting it.

He said many car riders did not own property. That, to make up the $16,000,000 deficit following the shift from 10-cent to 5-cent fares, extra taxation would be necessary, the burden falling, naturally, on the property owners.

FLING AT CURLEY.

Attorney Charles F. Rowley, Brookline selectman, said the public had not been told the whole story of transportation difficulties, and added the people had too much intelligence to believe a five-cent fare would settle those difficulties.

He took a fling at Mayor Curley, saying that while Brookline residents rode to the office in Fords, he had seen the Mayor, through the latticework of a street car window, "riding down in a handsome Pierce-Arrow."

"Do you mean the residents of Brookline really use Fords?" asked Representative McCormick, Curley's champion.

"At least the town doesn't buy them machines," said Rowley.

"Don't you know the machine you saw was bought during the Peters administration?" continued McCormick. But Stowley said he didn't know.

Attorney Rowley said that he understood a five-cent fare would mean an increase of about $2.32 per $1,000 in taxation, and Brookline wasn't ready to stand it.

Others who spoke were H. L. Boutelle of Malden and the following from the Boston Chamber of Commerce: Claude L. Allen, legislative counsel; Charles H. Adams, chairman of the Committee on Taxation; Philip Nichols, Committee on Taxation; Professor E. E. Lincoln, Committee on Public Utilities, and W. Chester Gray.

FEAR ADDED TAX.

Representative Edward L. Willard of Chelsea said one-half the residents of that city used the old Bay State lines and would not benefit by the Elevated legislation. He opposed the bill.

City Solicitor Joseph W. Bartlett of Newton said the bill would add $160,000 to the taxes of his city. He objected to the referendum features of the Curley bill, as did most of the speakers.

Elbridge R. Anderson of the Boston Real Estate Exchange said the bill would leave the way open for the taxing of real estate for private gain. Fred J. Warren, chairman of the Somerville Board of Assessors, and A. L. Taylor, town solicitor of Belmont, opposed the measure.

Chamber of Commerce members in opposing the Curley bill, made it clear they were not opposed to five-cent fares, but to the method by which and the time at which it was presented.

Ex-Mayor Walter H. Cremmer of Lynn made one of the bitterest attacks on the legislation proposed by Boston's Mayor.

He called it "immoral, unjust, an adventure in Socialism, a bill to promote unemployment in Boston."

He said it would aid in the crippling of industry and lose Boston commercial prestige, by doing no permanent good to any class.

Favor 5-Cent Fare? Go to Hearing at State House

If you are in favor of 5-cent carfare, do not fail to attend the hearing this afternoon before the House Committee on Rules in the State House auditorium.

Get there early and make the legislators understand that Boston will not tolerate opposition to nickel carfare. Tell them you want a 5-cent fare and want it now.

DIVORCE GIVEN TO BROOKLINE GIRL BRIDE

Attorney Samuel Sigliman today, before Judge Bell of the Superior Court, obtained a divorce decree nisi for Ethel Alberts of No. 12 Fuller street, Brookline, from Nathan A. Alberts, on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment.

Mrs. Alberts is only nineteen years of age and is still a student at a boarding school in New York, while her husband is three years her senior.

Mr. and Mrs. Alberts were married on March 3, 1921. Their first domestic trouble came while they were spending their honeymoon in New York city. They quarreled, Mrs. Alberts said, over money, and Alberts took from her $2,000 which her father had given her as a wedding present. Part of the money later was returned to her, but she said Alberts kept the balance to pay for an engagement ring.

Mrs. Alberts told of several beatings her husband had given her, and, on one occasion, she had to go to a hospital for a week, she said.

Mrs. Alberts was given the right to resume her maiden name of Pearlstein.

LYNN BOY BITTEN BY DOG IN AUTO

Police are looking for the dog which escaped in the crowd. The owner of the automobile from which the dog jumped is not known to the police. The attack of the dog came without warning, according to bystanders.

MOTHER PLANS APPEAL FOR MATHILDE

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 1.—Judicial investigation of Max Oser's eligibility and qualifications as a husband for Mathilde McCormick is the next step in the international romance of John D. Rockefeller's seventeen-year-old granddaughter, and the friction between her parents, Today Mathilde has a guardian who is said to be ready to give his consent to her marriage to the Swiss, who was her riding master during her girlhood days in the Alps.

Her father, Harold F. McCormick, was accepted by his divorced wife as a suitable guardian for their daughter, with one exception. The horseman of Zurich is the exception, and Saturday Judge Horner of the Probate Court is expected to decide whether Max's twenty-seven years' seniority over his prospective bride and his comparative poverty furnish sufficient grounds to grant an injunction restraining Mr. McCormick from giving his consent to the international marriage.

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Mathilde's mother, expressed the fear there were mercenary motives in Max's courtship of her daughter, who is heir to part of the Rockefeller millions as well as some of the McCormick wealth. The marriage, Mrs. McCormick said, might subject Mathilde to "the machinations and intrigues of designing persons."

The unusual situation of an injunction petition to prevent an international marriage will likely head to Judge Horner's court, it was said today. Judge Charles S. Cutting, counsel for Mrs. McCormick, intimated as much if Judge Horner stamps his judicial "O. K." on Mr. McCormick's tacit approval of the contemplated union and denies the petition.

KIN OF ROCKEFELLER IN WEDDING CLASH

Mrs. McCormick branded Max Oser, Swiss riding master and her daughter's fiance, a "fortune hunter" in a sensational petition which she filed in the Probate Court at Chicago, asking the court to block the proposed wedding of Oser and Mathilde.

DOCTOR STEVENS ADMITS GIVING GIRL DRUG

ducting the prosecution, "whether Miss Logue ever used morphine before she went to work for you?"

"I do not," replied the doctor.

Q.—"You are married, doctor?"

A.—"Yes."

Major Robert Murchie, attorney for the accused man, objected here to the trend of the questions, and Attorney Blood said that they were intended to show the relations between the doctor and his assistant.

"Those relations were those of an office assistant who takes telephone calls and things of that sort," declared Major Murchie.

"Any other relations?" asked Mr. Blood.

COUNSEL IN TILTS.

This question was ruled out after objection by Attorney Murchie.

Mr. Blood then began a series of questions designed to show that Dr. Stevens handled morphine without due caution, a line that brought more than one tiff between counsel.

Dr. Stevens denied that he had told Dr. Stuart that the bottle of morphine tablets he had purchased Christmas Eve had been only a part bottle and said that he had paid for a full bottle and believed he had received one.

He also testified that Miss Logue, never to his knowledge, had taken morphine of her own initiative.

Q.—How long had she been living in the same house with you? A.—I don't remember, but she had a room in Malden, where she went very frequently.

Q.—Did you ever administer hypodermia injections to Miss Logue as her physician? A.—Yes.

GAVE DRUGS MANY TIMES.

Q.—What was the first time and the trouble? A.—In the middle of June or July, 1920. She was suffering from an internal ailment.

Q.—How many injections did you give her? A.—Two, one-quarter grain each.

Q.—Were there any other occasions when you gave her morphine? A.—Yes. On several occasions; at certain times when the pain was intense.

Q.—Have you tried anything else for these hurts usually did you cases of the kind? A.—Yes. I tried many remedies, but they all failed. I used morphine only when they had all failed.

Q.—On December 24—will you tell the jury what happened? A.—Grace Logue was ill. She had complained during the day of 8 pain in her arm; had diagnosed it as neuralgia, and for which I gave her several aspirin tablets during the day. In the evening she came to me, self wrapped her neck with a cloth which she had soaked in camphorated oil.

The doctor then went on to tell of the coming of Miss Ruth Buckle, of No. 182 Pleasant street, Woburn, to ask him to call upon her mother, Mrs. Mabel Frances Buckle. Later James Buckle, the husband of Mrs. Buckle, called with the same request, and about half past ten o'clock Dr. Stevens said he went to the Buckle home, first going to a nearby drug store to purchase some morphine. A drug he had found necessary to use in treating Mrs. Buckle, who had been a confirmed invalid for some time.

After getting the morphine, he said, he had gone back to his apartment and found Miss Logue suffering acutely. He gave her an injection of one-half grain of morphine. He then hurried on to the Buckle residence.

DREW OUT GIRL'S TOOTH.

There he found it was not necessary to give Mrs. Buckle any morphine and returned home. That was shortly after eleven o'clock. Miss Logue was in her room, and, as he went by the door, he said, he gave a knock. She came out, almost hysterical with pain and begged him to relieve her.

She told him that she thought the pain came from the crown of the tooth that was troubling her, and asked him to remove it. This he did with a pair of forceps, which he laid on the mantel with the crown. They were found there the next morning by the medical examiner and the chief of police.

"The removal of the crown," Dr. Stevens said, "in reply to a question, "failed to give Miss Logue any relief, and she asked me to give her another dose of morphine. I told her to wait awhile. However, when she was still suffering, about half past eleven, I gave her a second dose of a quarter grain, making three-quarters of a grain of morphine in all.

NO SIGNS OF GAY PARTY.

Q.—In one dose" A.—Yes.

Q.—Followed by a quarter grain? A.—Yes.

Dr. Stevens testified that he had administered something like 1,000 hypodermic injections during his twenty-two years of practice.

Before putting Dr. Stevens on the stand Attorney Murchie called James Burke, who told of having called at the doctor's office in 1920 for Dr. Stevens to hurry his call upon Mrs. Buckle.

This witness, said there were no signs of a "gay party," and that the door had been opened to him by Miss Logue.

Mr. Buckle was followed by his wife and daughter. The latter told of her call at the doctor's office earlier and of having seen no one there as all except Miss Logue.

SOUGHT ANOTHER DENTIST.

They all fixed the time of Dr. Steven's call upon Mrs. Buckle at about 10:45 p. m.

Dr. Sherman Sanborn, a dentist of Woburn, who has practiced there for forty-two years, told of having received a call from Miss Logue shortly after 10 o'clock that night asking him to treat her for an ulcerated tooth.

He had told her that as she was not his patient he could not do this and suggested that she get Dr. Stevens to give her an injection of morphine to ease her through the night, until she could get to a dentist in the morning.

Ross Often at Ward's Office, Says Employe

White Plains, N. Y., June 1 (By International News Service).—"Charlie" Ross and "Jack," companions of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., were frequent visitors at Walter S. Ward's office, according to a statement today by one of the Ward office employes.

He said the two men, according to Ward, were conspiring with Peters in an effort to blackmail him, had already access to Ward's private office. Their visits usually lasted from 10 minutes to half an hour.

Miss Kendall Had Ward Arrested in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1.—Miss Martha Kendall, whose name entered the Walter S. Ward case today from Los Angeles, was recalled by Pittsburgh people closely associated with the Federal Baseball League five years ago. Ward's father was an official of the Brooklyn Club.

"There was a Miss Kendall who was waitress in a restaurant near the hotel where Federal League players were quartered when in Pittsburgh," said William McCollough, former secretary of the Pittsburgh Federal League "Miss had Ward arrested, and he was taken before an Allegheny alderman. From there the case went to court, I believe, but never came to trial. I have heard it was settled for $1,000, because Ward did not want the publicity. I know he was not guilty of the charge."

Search of the Allegheny County District Attorney's office failed to reveal papers bearing on the case, nor was there a record of a civil suit. R. H. Jackson, who was District Attorney at that time, was later disbarred.

Peters Slain in Feud Over Mystery Girl

Reading, Pa., June 1.—Clarence Peters of Haverhill Mass., slain by Walter S. Ward as the result of an alleged blackmail plot, was engaged in a bitter feud with a wealthy married man "with a pretty wife" for the affections and possession of a mysterious girl, according to the story told here by Guy A. Phillips, a former service man, and a vocational student at a wireless school in Philadelphia.

In addition to this statement, which is expected to throw light on the circumstances surrounding the motives for the slaying, Phillips insists that Peters was alive not only on May 15, but also on May 16, the day the New York police say they found his body near the Kensico Reservoir.

PERLEY DOE I WHITE PLAGUE VICTIM

Perley B. Doe, son of the late Chief Justice Doe of the New Hampshire State Supreme Court, Harvard graduate and once a Boston letter carrier, lies buried in a lonely spot in the Colorado Mountains close to the famous Royal Gorge.

He fought a losing fight with the white plague and with the government also.

During the war socialistic beliefs led him to heckle President Wilson and other members of the War Cabinet with literature in which he criticised their actions.

He was convicted of violation of the espionage act and misuse of the mails, and sentenced to fifteen months in the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Defier of God and government, he was an agnostic, he could not withstand the dreaded disease that drove him out of Massachusetts into the Colorado hills to fight for life. He was removed to the Colorado State Prison in feeble health and later pardoned.

In a little mountain cabin he clung to his beliefs and the faint spark of life.

Today they buried him, his wife at the grave, with a sister from New Hampshire and two friends. He was fifty-two years old.

The ship was being pounded to pieces today.

AUTO HITS 2 BOYS, ONE TRAFFIC OFFICER'S SON

Paul Logan, 9-year-old son of a Boston traffic officer, living at No. 101 Hamilton street, and Vincent Strychalsky, 9 years old, No. 88 Hamilton street, both of Dorchester are at the City Hospital after being struck on Columbia Road by an auto operated by Attorney Harold Leventhal of No. 148 Trowbridge street, Cambridge.

Witnesses to the accident exonerated Attorney Leventhal of blame for the boys' injuries.

The boys started in front of my car, stopped in confusion and it was impossible to avoid striking them," Attorney Leventhal told the police. I stooped my machine within its own length, picked them up and hurried them to the hospital."

Physicians say the boys will recover.

ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTING TO HANG OWN DAUGHTER

Rochester, N. Y., June 1.—George Metzger, forty-two years old, a railroad employe, was under observation at the county hospital here today, following an alleged attempt to hang his fourteen-year-old daughter Althea. Metzger is alleged to have dragged her by the hair to the attic of his home in Beachwood street, placed a rope around her neck and threatened to hang her to the rafters. The girl's screams aroused the neighborhood and she was rescued.

TWO HELD FOR HAVING FOUR OUNCES LIQUOR

Charged with unlawfully possessing four ounces of liquor found in their lunch pails, Peter J. Connors of Mendon street, Roxbury, and Jeremiah O'Connor of Kneeland street, Boston, were held in $500 bail each by United States Commissioner Hayes today. The cases were continued to June 6.

The effort of this country is to accumulate wealth. The government of the country is 90 per cent a government BY wealth. And naturally the psychology of judges, and others in power, reflects the real power. It could not be otherwise.

Philatelists, meaning well, will try to interest high school children in collecting stamps. It's a mistake, for stamp collecting calls for money and is largely a matter of money. And it is not good for children to interest them prematurely in the mere getting of money to be spent for a purpose not actually useful, merely to gratify a fad.

An hour in a natural history museum will do more to educate a child than five years spent in collecting stamps.

EX-SENATOR HOLLIS' SECOND WIFE GOES TO SANITARIUM

MYSTERY IN NEW MOVE

Denies Herself to Friends and Callers and Retires to Seclusion Without Her Husband

Concord, N. H., June 1.—Mrs. Anne White Hobbs Hollis, second wife of former U. S. Senator Henry F. Hollis, whose marriage in Rome a short time ago created a sensation throughout the country because of the alleged illegality of the divorce which the Senator obtained in Bulgaria from his first wife, has gone into seclusion in the New Hampshire hills.

Alone and unannounced Mrs. Hollis made her appearance in Concord. She rushed to her old apartment in the New Hampshire Bank building, and after unpacking some of her belongings, hurried away to the country. During her brief stay here she even refused to answer the telephone calls of some of her old friends.

GOES TO SANITARIUM.

Today a Boston American reporter located her in the Austin Sanitarium which is situated at a lonely and forsaken spot on the shore of Winnepaukett Lake in the town of Webster. There she has retired to her room and refuses to see either newspapermen or her friends.

In the same sanitarium lives her aged mother who was placed there some time ago when her health and mental faculties began to give way.

Mrs. Hollis brought back to Concord a large amount of baggage—more, it is reported, than she took away with her when she left for Rome and the marriage that has caused countless tongues to wag from coast to coast. The large amount of luggage has started Concord tongues wagging on another tack now, and Concord folk are trying to figure out whether or not there has been a split between her and the former Senator.

RETURN STARTS GOSSIP.

Why did Mrs. Hollis suddenly return to Concord? Why did she return alone instead of in the company of her husband? Why has she apparently cast aside her old friendships? Why has she refused to talk even to her most intimate friends? Why has she left Concord and taken refuge at a private sanitarium was back deep in the hills? Where is Senator Hollis?

These are some of the many questions that Concord folk are asking today.

Her relatives in Concord are silent. Not a word one way or another will they say regarding Mrs. Hollis or her affairs. They will not even say whether or not they know anything about her affairs.

What Mrs. Hollis's next step will be is a problem of considerable interest to the residents of Concord. It is rumored that she will take her mother, Mrs. Armenia White, away from the sanitarium within a week and will retire to her Summer cottage at Lake Sunapee.

The funeral will be held Friday morning from his late home with a solemn high mass of requiem in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross at 10 o'clock.

Named to Take "Sally" Part Once Played by Geneva Mitchell

FAIRE BINNEY

MISS MITCHELL OUT OF 'SALLY' CAST TO STAY

Geneva Mitchell will not return to Boston to twinkle in "Sally," from the cast of which she was removed a week ago, following the wild chorus girl party in her apartment at No. 246 Commonwealth avenue, at which two "Last Waltz" girls were so badly injured they are said to have needed more than applied hospital dressings to heal their injured feelings.

It was announced today that Faire Binney, petite commedienne and musical comedy principal, has been named to appear in Geneva's part in this evening's performance of "Sally" at the Colonial Theatre.

She takes the part which has been filled by a sister of Marilyn Miller, the star, since Geneva was removed and went to Broadway to see Flo Zeigfeld, owner of the show, who ordered her removal.

Geneva's visit was evidentally not successful, despite a telegram to a male member of the famous party that she had "Seen Ziegy and everything was rosy."

WILL HUNT CONTINENT BEYOND ARCTIC CIRCLE

Seattle, Wash., June 1.—Captain Roald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, who sails for the Frozen North Saturday, to be gone several years, has announced that the chief object of this latest Polar exploration is the discovery of the great northern continent believed to exist beyond the Arctic Circle. Captain Amundsen says that he is reserving the right to name the continent should he be fortunate enough to be its discoverer. The adventurers will leave better equipped for battling with the Arctic ice than any former expedition.

DROP COLORED OFFICER FROM POLICE FORCE

Harvey B. Yates, colored patrolman, attached to the Roxbury Crossing station, was today discharged from the police force. He was found guilty by a police trial board of conduct unbecoming an officer in connection with the charge that he accepted a bribe of $20 from Mrs. Isadore Paul of Hammond street, Roxbury, to protect her from liquor raids.

Yates was notified of the findings of the board when he reported for duty today, by Captain Jeremiah F. Gallivan.

He surrendered his uniform, club, pistol and badge and left the station house without making any comment. Friends assert, however, he will carry the case to court on a charge that he was "framed."

Yates was the first colored patrolman appointed to the newly-organized police force.

He is commander of the Carter Post, American Legion.

Mrs. Paul brought bribery charges against Yates two weeks ago. Her husband had been convicted of illegal possession of liquor and fined $10. Mrs. Paul charged the patrolman went to her following disposition of the case and offered her protection.

She said she gave him two marked $10 bills. These was searched by police officers, but no marked money was found on him, it was said at the time.

He was taken before a trial board of three police captains.

A year ago Mrs. Victoria Douglas of Yarmouth street charged that Yates attacked her. He was indicted on a serious charge. The jury trying the case disagreed. Later the indictment was not pressed.

Yates is married and has one child.

HEARING IN MORSE CASE OFF TILL JUNE 19

The hearing of Benjamin Morse, indicted with his brother, Erwin A., and his father, Charles W., scheduled for today on conspiracy charges was postponed until June 19. Hearing was to have been held before Commissioner Hayes. It was put off at the request of Attorney Hayward of New York in charge of the government's prosecution of the Morse family.

Morse surrendered in Boston recently and was released in $2,500 bail after entering a plea of not guilty.

WEALTHY YOUTH CLAIMS MISTAKEN IDENTITY

New York, June 1 (By International News Service)—Claiming he was the victim of mistaken identity, Victor M. Carter, a clerk in the Bowery branch of the Chatham and Phoenix National Bank, was arraigned in a Brooklyn police court today charged with participating in the holdup of a cigar store. He pleaded not guilty. The magistrate expressed his personal opinion that the owner of the cigar store had made an error. Carter said he was the son of a wealthy cocoa planter at Trinidad.

DAUGHERTY TO DEFY 'SINISTER HAND' IN PROBE

Washington, June 1.—Another broad hint that "sinister influences" are attempting serious interference with prosecution of governmental war contract frauds was given today by Attorney-General Daugherty.

Announcing his determination to "knuckle down" to the task of aiding special Federal Grand Jury, now probing the charged frauds, Mr. Daugherty declared:

"We are meeting every interference as it comes up and in the end the interference will be found to be inspired for other reasons than those publicly given. The interference was expected, and we are not surprised, disappointed, nor discouraged."

LINKED IN 'WET' SCANDALS.

Efforts by Democratic Senators to link up Attorney General Daugherty with a series of alleged "prohibition scandals" continued today in the face of the republican counter charges that the Attorney-General's accusers were throwing out a "smoke screen" to shield former officers of the Wilson administration.

Administration leaders in the Senate turned a deaf ear to the attempt by Senator Watson, Democrat, of Georgia, to fasten upon Mr. Daugherty responsibility for numerous "liquor scandals" in New York.

Mr. Watson charged specifically that Mr. Daugherty had ordered released 200,000 gallons of wine in New York after Thomas H. Felder, his former law associate, had become attorney for the accused owners.

NEW CARAWAY ATTACK.

At the same time, Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, launched a new attack on Mr. Daugherty in connection with the Morse pardon case. Mr. Caraway said he would call the Senate's attention to wide discrepancies in statements of Mr. Daugherty and Mr. Felder regarding the Attorney-General's pay for freeing Morse.

Mr. Caraway added he would read to the Senate a statement given by Mr. Felder to the International News Service on May 23. In this statement Mr. Felder declared Mr. Daugherty had not received a penny in the Morse case.

"At the same time I will show Daugherty wrote the Senator from Indiana (Watson) he had received $4,000 from Felder."

MOTHER SEEKS NEW PROBE IN GIRL'S DEATH

Bridgeport, Ct., June 1.—The mysterious case of the death of Dr. Elizabeth Radom on a lonely road in Fairfield last December is to be reopened for investigation.

Dr. Radom, according to a theory finding many supporters here, was murdered, instead of a suicide.

A leading exponent of this theory is Mrs. Mary Radom, the mother of the comely twenty-nine-year-old physician, who is morally sure her daughter was a foul play victim and wants the guilty punished.

Coroner John J. Phelan who "closed up" the case months ago after Medical Examiner Donaldson declared death due to suicide, said Mrs. Radom's plea was to be considered.

If the mother of Dr. Radom can produce sufficient evidence to warrant it the body will be exhumed and an autopsy performed. It is a matter of vivid remembrance here that at the time the body of Dr. Radom was found no autopsy was undertaken.

Donaldson found that the girl doctor died of an overdose of some kine of drug.

The popular theory at the time was that Dr. Elizabeth Radom died somewhere else, in company of two men and a woman, and was taken to the Beach road in Fairfield and abandoned.

FORD DEMANDS GORGAS PLANT AT SHOALS

By International News Service.

Washington, June 1.—The original offer of Henry Ford for lease of the Muscle Shoals project was termed as "totally unsatisfactory" today by Secretary of War Weeks before the Senate Agricultural Committee. Secretary Weeks took particular exception to the Ford proposal of a 100-year tenure, which he declared would be harmful to the best interests of the country.

Washington, June 1.—Henry Ford's reply to the counter-proposal drafted by the House Military Committee for development of the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., was presented today to the committee by J. W. Worthington, a representative of Mr. Ford.

Mr. Ford's answer, made in the form of a letter to Chairman Kahn, definitely rejected the provision in the committee plan which eliminated the steam plant at Gorgas, Ala., from the properties to be disposed of by the government with the Muscle Shoals properties.

"I cannot consent to eliminate the Gorgas plant," the letter said, "because it is necessary to the economical operation of the Muscle Shoals properties. If my revised offer for Gorgas is rejected, then I must understand that the acceptance of my offer for Muscle Shoals as a whole and not in part is refused."

Baby Suffocated by Blanket in His Basket

When the sun streamed into the little home of the Webels at No. 112 Park street, Dorchester, Baby August used to wake and coo.

For a five-months-old, he had a lusty chuckle, and could kick, too.

He slept in a big basket in the front room, where a cool breeze always blew in through the filmey curtains.

Maybe it was the billowed "drapes" that amused August and made him coo.

Today the sun made its usual ribbon of blinking sunshine, freckling the big red rug with the reflected design of the curtains. It sprayed over the big basket, too, but, strangely enough, no chuckle came from the improvised crib.

Father and Mother Webel investigated. August was dead. He had suffocated beneath a blanket during the night.

TO PROBE OIL TRUST'S GRIP ON STATE

As a result of the charge by Senator John F. Shea of Holyoke that the Standard Oil Company has the oil business of this State in a monopolistic grip, the House has passed an order directing an investigation into the oil conditions.

The investigation will be made by the Commission on the Necessaries of Life. The order had earlier been adopted by the Senate.

She began his war on the oil situation by advocating the passage of a law which would prohibit the leasing of roadside pumps with the stipulation that only the oil handled by the leasing corporation would be permitted to flow through the pump.

Shea then charged that the Standard Oil controls the pumps. He said the big corporation leased the pumps for $1 a year, which was never paid, and the roadside vendor agreed to offer only the company's oil to the passing motorist.

Shea's bill was held up as unconstitutional and he promptly introduced the order which provides for a probe into the quality and prices of gasoline.

DUEL TO DEATH WITH KNIVES OVER GIRL

Paris, June 1 (By the Associated Press.)—A duel to the death over a woman has brought prison sentences to the victor, Maurice Pinteaux, Parisian Apache, and the witnesses of the fight. The court rejected the defense's plea that dueling in the underworld was quite as respectable as sword or pistol affairs before top-hatted society leaders.

Pinteaux and the "seconds" were sentenced to two years imprisonment each, and the director of the combat to six months for their parts in the death of Charles Lallemant, another Apache. Lallemant was formerly the paramour of Louise Italier, but Pinteaux won her from him.

The testimony showed that the duel was conducted according to set rules. Similar knives, well sharpened at the scene by witnesses, were given to the combatants. Lallemant, to his misfortune, disregarded the rules. When he attempted to follow up his advantage of drawing first blood by kicking vigorously at Pinteaux's abdomen, the other Apache closed in on him, repeatedly stabbing his opponent until he fell mortally wounded.

SCHOOL GRAFT IN MEDFORD CHARGED

Probe of Building Contracts by District Attorney Demanded

The city of Medford today was seething with a graft scandal which involved politics and the estimated loss to the city of between $60,000 and $83,000 through the erection of the Fulton Heights School.

Allegations came in a report of a special committee to the Board of Aldermen. Graft is charged and an investigation by the district attorney is demanded.

Behind the scenes lurks the ghost of politics and there threatens to follow one of the bitterest political mayoralty fights the one-time home of good rum has ever known.

Mayor Benjamin F. Haines, four times mayor, now serving his eighth year in office, awarded the contract for the erection of the schoolhouse two years ago, following a row with aldermen over appropriations.

At a meeting of the Aldermen the report of the special committee which investigated the matter was submitted and Aldermen gasped when they saw what it contained. A mere 800 closely typewritten pages. Immediately two weeks was asked to examine it. It will be acted upon at the next meeting.

REFUSES TO SIGN REPORT.

Refusing to sign the report was Alderman Dennis J. Dwyer, who charged the report was greatly overdrawn and was a political move to discredit Mayor Haines by one or more candidates for Mayor.

The contract for the schoolhouse was given out in 1919. Site and building were to cost $65,000, building alone, $44,500. Michael M. Dwyer was awarded the general contract. Other contracts were awarded, but not to the lowest bidders, it is charged.

Work was no sooner started than it was halted. It was discovered the city had appropriated only $50,000 toward the work, so contracts were declared illegal, on the ground that the cost was exceeding appropriations.

ALL FIGURES HIGH.

The city appropriated $25,000 more to build the school. Mayor Haines immediately awarded Contractor Dwyer the job on a cost-plus basis. The six-room schoolhouse was built. In Concord its duplicate planned by the same contractor was finished just ahead of it.

With a better finish it cost $85,000. Medford's has cost $150,000 and there is still part of the land and stands on to be paid for.

Engineers who made estimates for the special investigating committee after the schoolhouse had been completed, differed as to the estimate of the cost of the structure. Estimates ranged from $60,000 to $90,000, the latter being the highest sum agreed upon that the $150,000 building could have cost.

The city of Medford today was seething with a graft scandal which involved politics, and the estimated loss to the city of between $60,000 and $83,000 through the erection of the Fulton Heights School.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in the "TIZ" tub.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also it will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot tortures.

'Photograph' Minds of Girls to Tell Mental Age

New York, June 1.—Girls may have little difficulty in concealing their years but they can't hide their "mental age"—not from the psychologist.

At Washington Irving High School the minds of girls are measured so they can be grouped into classes according to their mental age. This enables teachers to adapt instruction to the needs of the groups.

Dr. Edith Carothers says girls who are mischievous, deceitful or subject to emotional instability are mentally "photographed," so the teachers will know how to deal with them.

DIES IN CHAIR AS DAUGHTER DEMANDED

By International News Service.

Michigan City, Ind., June 1.—The plea of Mabel Donovan, seventeen years old, that her father be executed for the murder of her mother was answered at the Indiana State prison today when William E. Donovan died in the electric chair.

Donovan's execution was the climax of one of the most unusual criminal cases in Indiana. The State Prison Board, in denying commutation of sentence, was influenced by a letter from the daughter of the condemned man.

"In behalf of mother," the letter said, "I want to say to you and the Board of Pardons I don't want this sentence changed."

The girl added that her father had shot "without cause" and that the "sentence given him is what he surely deserves."

Donovan shot his wife as she held their two-year-old child in her arms. He then asserted the woman had shot herself.

ROUTS BURGLAR IN GUN FIGHT IN DARK

Taunton, June 1.—George A. Hathaway, a Dighton farmer, armed with a double-barrelled shot gun, drove a burglar from his home shortly before daybreak after a furious but bloodless gun duel in the dark.

The burglar, who was using a revolver, and apparently ran out of ammunition, escaped by leaping from a second story window, carrying the screen with him.

Hathaway was awakened by his wife, who heard the intruder moving about. A light at the head of the stairs had been extinguished and the burglar was using a flashlight.

Hathaway leaped from his bed and gained a small attic where the shotgun was kept before the intruder could find him with the light. Firing started immediately.

Mrs. Hathaway and their daughter, Dorothy, took refuge in closets while the gun fight was on. A short time before the Hathaway home was entered the same burglar entered a house on the same street and stole a suit of clothes.

MELROSE HIGH SENIORS FEAR EXPULSIONS

And all because of a paid of black, greasy paint, a brush, and one or more foolish undergraduates.

It may be necessary to chisel away some of the material to remove the stains.

Remembering when another senior class thus sought to perpetuate its memory at Melrose some years ago, there were special sessions of the school committee, and a number of expulsions. President Robert Dale of the class of '22 called his fellow students about him today and suggested that whoever did it "fess up."

Nobody did. The school officials are preserving an ominous quiet, but the unhappy seniors expect any minute to learn that their commencement exercises are postponed until whoever did the painting admits it.

Governor Pingree was always active in town affairs and was town clerk of Hartford for sixty years, being allowed to hold the office even while he was the State's chief executive. He is survived by his wife, an adopted son, William, who is assistant town clerk of Hartford, and two grandchildren.

"THE BIGAMIST."

Blanch Maitland..Edith Ellison
Story by F. E. Mills Young. Directed by Guy Newall.

ANOTHER foreign production has reached our shores, this time the British film, "The Bigamist," being shown at the Modern and Beacon Theatres.

This picture presents in the featured role one of the most beautiful screen actresses we have seen in some time, Ivy Duke. Miss Duke has, besides beauty, poise and the ability to dress well. Whether she can act or not there is question, for in "The Bigamist," she is not given much opportunity for emotional playing. She suggests the type that at no time loses her calm enough to become emotional.

The acting is good at times. Miss Duke is acceptable and extremely easy to look upon. Guy Newall, "the other man," does well with few opportunities, while Julian Royce, on whom much of the action depends, plays with restraint and ease. The rest of the company is indifferent.

Again we can compare our own films with those of other countries, and again our own triumphs, and to a greater extent than in comparison with continental films. The photography is conspicuously poor. The direction, too, leaves much to be desired, while the story is a muddle of human emotions that counteract one another so strongly that one is at a loss as to where to place the sympathy.

But Miss Duke is infinitely lovely and the settings are uncommonly well arranged. They quite show up American interior decorating in films.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

WORD comes for the Goldwyn studios on the West coast that Rupert Hughes is hard at work editing his newest production, "The Bitterness of Sweets," in which Colleen Moore and Antonio Moreno have the featured roles.

Hughes, who has signed a new contract with the Goldwyn concern to write, direct, and edit his own pictures, intends that this one shall be without titles throughout. Charles Ray's "Old Swimmin' Hole" is the only example of this sort of picture that has ever been made, and that had practically no plot. "Bitterness of Sweets," however, is crammed with plot.

HUGHES' NEXT

AND speaking of Rupert Hughes, he is already thinking of his next film. It will probably be the screen version of his novel, "Souls For Sale," now running in serial form in this paper. He has another story practically completed, "The Perfect Wife."

NO MORE COMEDY.

DALE FULLER seems to have given up being a target for custard pies for good. After years of strenuous comedy work, she appeared in a serious role as Maruschka, the maid in "Foolish Wives," a piece of work that stood out in that film of expensive hokum.

Now Miss Fuller has signed up to appear as a maid in "Borderland," a Famous Players production starring Agnes Ayres. This, too, will be an important role.

PHYLLIS HAVER, TOO.

NONE other than Phyllis Haver, one of the most famous "sirens" of the Mack Sennett comedies, has been picked for the role of Polly Love in the Goldwyn version of Hall Caine's novel, "The Christian." Miss Haver has left to join the rest of the company, headed by Richard Dix and Mae Busch, in England.

THE UNSUCCESSFUL LOVER.

CASSON FERGUSON is getting disgusted. Since his debut in films he has been cast for the unsuccessful lover. After "The Prince Chap," in which Lila Lee turned him down decisively, he hoped for better luck, but Betty Compson would have none of him in "The End of the World," and then Agnes Ayres followed her suit in "Borderland."

Now he is cast for a role in "Manslaughter," in which he is a youthful suitor for the hand of Leatrice Joy, who turns him down for Thomas Meighan. Ferguson complains that he hasn't even the excuse of being the villain; he's just unlucky!

To Talk at Northeastern

Professor Roy Davis, assistant dean of the College of Business Administration of Boston University, will speak before the preparatory department of Northeastern College Tuesday evening, June 13 on "The Genius of the American Democracy."

He is the 47th person to get a big $100.00 check—Your name may be next —if you have sent it in previously, send it in again—keep on sending it as often as you like.—Then watch the Boston Daily Advertiser.—Adv.

"Good-by, Dolly Gray" Author Dies Insane, a Pauper

New York, June 1.—That the Paul Barnes, who died in Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, on May 8, insane, blind and a pauper, was the author of "Good-by, Dolly Gray," the battle chant of American soldiers and sailors in the war against Spain, became known today.

Barnes was the author of many other songs once popular.

The last appearance of Paul Barnes was in English music halls just at the outbreak of the war. When he and his wife, who worked with him, returned to Broadway they found themselves forgotten, and soon, through worry, Barnes became insane.

EVICTION NOTICE FOR CURLEY MAN

The second chapter in the effort to oust Patrick J. Doherty from his tenement at No. 52 Pleasant street, Charlestown, made by Mrs. John R. Murphy, wife of the erstwhile candidate for Mayor of Boston, was staged by Mrs. Murphy today, when the tenant, a worker and supporter of Mayor Curley during the mayoralty campaign, was served with a thirty-days' notice to vacate the premises.

As he did in the first instance when he received a fourteen-days' notice to quit, on May 22 Doherty went to Chairman Herbert E. Ellis of the Rent and Housing Board and told of the continued desire of Mrs. Murphy to be on distant terms with the political enemy of her husband.

Chairman Ellis advised Doherty to "sit tight" until about the middle of the month, when, if he hasn't obtained another tenement, the courts may be appealed to to come to his relief.

NATIONAL GUARD TO SHOW WHAT IT CAN DO

Strategic plans for The Battle of Alewife Brook, to be fought in the old Playground, Dilboy Field, Somerville, Saturday evening, have been completed by Major M. H. Leonard, of the 101st Engineers, Massachusetts National Guard, as the grand finale of the first annual Field Day of that organization. Every branch of the service will have an opportunity to demonstrate just what the National Guard of the Old Bay State is doing as the first line of national defence. There will be airplanes, tanks and all the other equipment of modern warfare brought into play, as well as athletic events, and dancing to wind up with.

MILK WAGON VS. ICE IN CRASH; ICE WINS

An ice wagon proved unsurpassable to a runaway horse attached to a milk wagon in Somerville late today, after an automobile had been bowled out of the way and a hundred pedestrains forced to flee for cover.

The horse, driven by William Foley, employed by F. E. Giles of No. 241 Summer street, Somerville, bolted in Elm street. At Cherry street the wagon collided with an automobile and sent it skidding into the gutter, its occupants shrieking in fright.

At Willow avenue an ice wagon manned by Richard Cotter of No. 118 Highland avenue, and Joseph Padovani of No. 666 Somerville avenue, Somerville, crossed the path of the fast moving horse and the impact was heard for blocks.

Cotter was knocked from the wagon and beneath the horse, which was tossed into the air. In the fall and wild veiling that followed the man was badly injured.

He was extricated by Patrolman Chester Warren of the Somerville police, who hurried him to Somerville Hospital. He has possible internal injuries.

Padovani, who jumped clear of the wreck, escaped with only a bath from gallons of milk showered over the street.

Bystenders sat on the head of the horse until it was quieted. Then everybody who had sought temporary cyclone cellars, breathed easy once more and reappeared in public. Business then got back to normal.

"PACKEY" McFARLAND FREED OF CONTEMPT

Chicago, June 1.—Patrick McFarland, known as "Packey" McFarland, former pugilist, was discharged after a hearing for alleged contempt of court, growing out of liquor law violations by a Joliet, Ill., brewery, of which McFarland is a former officer. Business Men Who Prosper in the Next 10 Years will be those who most quickly interpret present day conditions and readjust their selling plans to meet the new times. Great rewards await those who know and understand how to translate their knowledge into effective action. Several thousand such people will assemble at the

Eighteenth Annual Convention
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS OF THE WORLD
Milwaukee, June 11 to 15, 1922

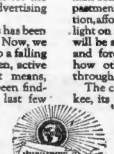
THEY will swap experiences, exchange ideas, discuss plans for the improvement of their advertising and selling methods.

For some years, business has been done on a rising market. Now, we must readjust our plans to a falling market. Few business men, active today, know what that means, except those who have been finding the way during the last few months.

There will be business men at Milwaukee from half way around the world—and thousands from the United States and Canada.

In addition to intimate man-to-man contract in the general and departmental sessions of the convention, affording opportunity to obtain light on individual problems, there will be a great exhibit of domestic and foreign advertising showing how others have created sales through advertising.

The central location of Milwaukee, its wonderful transportation facilities and the fact that June is Wisconsin's ideal month, insure a very large attendance. You do not have to be a member of an advertising club to attend.



For complete information as to special railroad rates, hotel reservations, etc., address
Associated Advertising Clubs, 110 West Fortieth Street, New York, N. Y.

GIRLS LURED TO WOODS BY FREE AUTO RIDE

Here's what happened to Lena Nichols, fifteen years old, No. 23 Mount Auburn street; Mary Graham, fourteen years old, No. 161, and Adeline Keefe, fourteen years old, of No. 35 Plympton street, all of Cambridge.

The girls, all of them pretty and attractive, were on their way home after a visit to Mrs. Mary McCarthy, of No. 19 Arsenal street, Watertown, the aunt of Miss Graham.

At Watertown square a machine in which there were two young men, well dressed and of pleasant manners, stopped at the curb, and the man who was driving invited the girls for a ride.

"We are going to Cambridge, where we live," said Miss Graham.

"Fine," said the auto, "we are going to Cambridge, too. Jump in."

The girls climbed into the car and the ride started. At first the men were very pleasant, keeping up a flow of cheerful talk.

But soon the girls noticed that they were in unfamiliar surroundings and that the country appeared to be growing rougher and more wooded.

And then came the climax. The car stopped. It was surrounded by woods.

"We're out of gas," said the young man at the wheel. "We'll have to wait until some car comes along to get some."

The man on the rear seat put his arm around one of the girls with him and kissed her. She screamed and the men laughed.

But the screams of the girls continued and, frightened, the men allowed them to leave the car, which dashed away down Central avenue, on the Needham-Wellesley line, and disappeared.

POLICE ARE NOTIFIED.

Terrified, the girls fled through the darkness of the woods until they were met by a Wellesley police officer, who took them to the Wellesley police station and the Cambridge police were asked to inform their parents.

The girls were so frightened they were unable to tell a connected story or to give any description of the two men. They could not even remember the number of the car in which they had gone riding.

BANKER McKNIGHT MAY LOSE USE OF ONE LEG

Edwin T. McKnight, former president of the Massachusetts State Senate and head of the Fidelity Trust Company, lost the sight of one eye and will be permanently lame as the result of an automobile accident, according to dispatches from Jacksonville, Fla., where he had been taking a vacation.

The glass of the windshield was ground into his eyes in such a way that the surgeons who are attending him say there is little chance he will ever recover the free use of that leg.

A glass splinter pierced the eyeball of one eye, destroying the sight, but the doctors believe they will be able to save the other eye.

REFUSES TO AID WIFE JAILED WITH SAILOR

"Love her? Well, now—

"But she's a wonderful woman."

Frank P. Chute, of No. 16 Chickatawbut street, Dorchester, is speaking. The wonderful woman is Mrs. Frank P. Chute who is meditating right now on the ways of men, behind the bars in the city prison at Norfolk, Va.

"I wonder how she likes it down there," mused Chute, thoughtfully, "she's been there since Friday, you know."

Mrs. Chute was arrested by the Norfolk police last Friday with Richard Woomer, erstwhile sea going charmer and hospital apprentice on the U. S. S. New Mexico, for violations of the Mann Act. She had been living with Woomer at a house on Gibbs avenue when the police located her.

She is certainly a wonderful woman," Mr. Chute repeated.

"Never since she may have been Mrs. Chute is wonderfully elusive She has eluded her husband since the first of March, when she disappeared from Panama, where the Chutes were living, in company with Woomer.

Chute trailed her to the States to Portland, Maine, her home town to Charleston, S. C., back across the continent and finally to Norfolk, whese, through his efforts, the police arrested her. A long prison term stares the woman in the face And Chute will do nothing to mitigate it.

"FELL GOOD AND HARD."

"It's funny," Chute continued half chuckling to himself. "I surkept clear of women for a long time and then I fell—good and hard!"

Chute is thirty-eight and has been married only a year.

"I've been down in Panama for the last sixteen years. I've always loved kids pretty much and the Christman youngsters are mighty fine ones. I annexed little Peter one night when I went to the family that was caring for him in Panama and said: 'What do you say, Sonny? Let's go!' Johnny took one look at the bunch that were 'caring' for him and slipped his hand into mine.

"Peter's little sister is a dear little kid and—well, I got to know their mother. You know how it is after that.

"Everything went all right until I got a letter from a soldier down there. Then things got lumpy and after awhile I sent her to the States —to get her out of temptation. But she came back and only three days afterwards she had slipped off with Woomer.

"She introduced him as a child hood friend from Portland, Me. I never thought much about him. I was wrapped up in the kids, anyway.

NOW A "CLOSED BOOK."

"They're dandy kids!" he exploded, suddenly. "I'm going to bring them on here—the boy, anyway. I've always thought I'd like to have kids around me and now I will, I guess.

"Their mother? That part of it's a closed book. I've done my share, I think. Sent her money regularly when she was trailing around the country with Woomer and I thought she might possibly be on the level. And now she's in jail. That's square enough, isn't it?"

Mrs. Chute, when arraigned in court, openly avowed her affection for Woomer and her intimacy with him. Her nine-year-old daughter, Marian, was with her. Her thirteen-year-old son, Peter, is in Portland.

The new schooner was built for Captain Clayton Morrissey of Gloucester, as a contender for the International Fishermen's Cup, but she will not be able to race this year unless an exception is made in her favor in the rule requiring that all contenders be on their way to the fishing grounds by May 1 of the year in which they contest. VOCATION OF UNBORN CHILD DETERMINED

If your son's a blacksmith and you believe he should have been a dentist it is your own fault.

If you wanted a baby boy and drew a girl that, too, is your fault.

So, too, is predetermination of vocation for the offspring.

All you have to do is concentrate.

For instance if you wanted a boy baby and was going to call him, say, "Hector," and you wanted Hector to be a musician, why, mother o' mine, just concentrate on music during the prenatal period, also on the male sex and lo, your baby will be born a boy and your boy will be a musician, not a blacksmith or a soda jerker or floor walker.

It was all explained to delegates to the convention of Allied Medical Associations of America by Dr. Almon Ira Lucas of New York, who placed his four-year-old son on a chair upon the lecture platform and had him tell about every bone and important organ in his little body.

Dr. Lucas, said to be the founder of vocational therapy, a doctor of psychotherapy and an ordained Baptist minister, informed the convention that the sex of the boy and his small sister present on another chair, had been determined before their births. The girl is Marguerite Vivianne Lucas, the boy Almon Lucas.

"To guide the vocation of the unborn babe," he continued, "the parents must concentrate mind and heart upon it and also practice it to a certain extent. For instance, if a musical career is selected, the mother should each day perform at different times upon some musical instrument."

The doctor said types of vocations that can be selected include domestic, trades, mechanical, business, professional, scientific, philosophical, literary, artistic and musical.

"I know of ninety-five other cases beside my own where the sex of children was successfully decided," said the minister-physician.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Miss Katherine L. Storey Is First June Bride Today

By BETTY ALDEN

THE first bride of June, this is the distinction falling upon Miss Katherine Ladd Storey, whose marriage to Theodore Lyman Storer will attract a fashionable throng to Trinity Church, where the ceremony takes place at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Miss Miriam Ladd of Milton has been selected as her cousin's maid of honor, the bridesmaids group including the Misses Elizabeth Winslow Clark, Louisa T. Bazeley, Gertrude Sturgis and Sara F. Apthorp. The bride, a member of the Vincent and Chilton Clubs, belongs to the Sewing Circle of 1918.

Mr. Storer will have his brother, John H. Storer, Jr., as best man. The distinguished corps of ushers is made up of the following young men, for the most part Harvard '18 classmates of the groom: Messrs. Robert Treat Paine Storer, another brother; Richard C. Storey, Jr., Moorefield Storey, Jr., Dr. Augustus Thorndike, Jr., Reed P. Anthony, Arthur T. Lyman, Thomas R. Morse, David B. Arnold, Francis H. Cummings, Frederick Lund, Henry G. Simonds, Kenneth B. G. Parson, Robert L. Goodale and Frederic De Vean.

The Rev. Alexander Mann, with the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton assisting, will officiate at the ceremony, which is to be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Storey, at No. 24 The Fenway.

ABOVE everything else, everyone admires a true sportsman, which accounts for the cheers and applause rising from all sides of the ring when John Bowditch rose from a nasty spill, remounted his horse and cleared the second fence.

It was at the very close of the Chestnut Hill horse show held on Tuesday that the accident occurred. The man had called "No. 23" and John Bowditch entered the ring riding Bamboo. The horse failed to take the fence, threw his rider and for a moment it looked as if the latter would be horribly trampled upon. As it was, Mr. Bowditch did not escape being hurt entirely, but rose from the ground, went over to the high-strung horse, mounted him, and amidst the enthusiastic handclappings of everyone present, he cleared the second fence.

The committee in charge of the show, under the chairmanship of George West, had nothing to complain of in the way of weather. It was a glorious day, and practically the entire horse-loving clan of those comprising our "social who's who" thronged to the equine event.

The show, I noted, was distinctly informal so far as Milady's costume was concerned. A goodly portion of those present wore riding habits, while the simplest of sport clothes did for the rest. It was quite evident that society came to see the exhibition of horses and horsemanship in the ring, and not to glean the latest fashion hints.

FROM Paris comes the news that Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard and her youngest daughter, Miss Priscilla Pollard, of Commonwealth avenue, are leaving the gay French capital this week, whence they go to London. After a fortnight's visit in the British capital they will sail for home, and upon their arrival on these shores they will, I presume, make their way immediately to "Barlovento," the Pollard Summer estate in Gloucester.

Priscilla Pollard, who was one of the most widely-feted debutantes of the past season, was introduced at a dinner dance given at the Copley-Plaza by her mother. The affair, which was one of the very few formal and really large events given for the "bud" contingent, was preceded by a dinner in Priscilla's honor, at which the hostess was her sister, Mrs. Jonathan S. Raymond (Pauline Pollard) of Marlboro street.

Apropos of members of the Pollard family, another of Mrs. Pollard's daughters, Mrs. "Pete" Sortwell (Elise Pollard) and her husband are domiciled for the season at Beverly Farms. Mrs. "Pete," by the way, is a staunch devotee to the "harem" veil, and is hardly ever seen at the Farms minus the rather prominent bit of raiment. These harem veils are really practical, as they do prevent extreme sunburn, though I should think they would become a bit warm, worn, as they are, to cover the lower half of the wearer's face.

Betty Alden

MISS VERA HOWELL.

Miss Vera Howell and her shiny-coated mount added to the attractions of the nineteenth annual horse show held at Chestnut Hill. A large representation of society's sport-loving contingent turned out for the exhibit.

REED ATTACKS SUPREME COURT "TRUST BUILDING"

Palmyra, Mo., June 1.—James A. Reed, candidate for the Democratic renomination for United States Senator, in a speech here assailed the United States Supreme Court in referring to the announcement of the $157,000,000 tobacco firm merger. "We had cut the tobacco trust serpent into four or five innocuous pieces," declared Mr. Reed, "and now we see it is gathered together again wagging its tail. And the Supreme Court will undoubtedly approve. Of late our Supreme Court has been turning its attention to trust building."

REPORT BONUS BILL BY END OF WEEK

By Associated Press

Washington, June 1.—The Finance Committee report on the amended House Soldier's Bonus Bill still was in the making today, but Chairman McCumber hoped to report it and the bill to the Senate before the end of the week.

Then the measure will take its place on the calendar to be called up after agreement has been reached among senators for its consideration.

Chairman McCumber is expected to stress these points in his report to the Senate:

That the loan feature enabling veterans to obtain funds had been retained.

That a veteran could make application for compensation without any limitation as to time.

That a veteran defaulting in repayment of a loan to the government could redeem his certificate at any time before its maturity.

That all changes made in the House bill were agreeable to representatives of the veterans' organizations.

That the proposed legislation would postpone pensions for the veterans for a number of years.

Many people have jewelry which is worth reclaiming tucked away in safe deposit vaults or jewel boxes. Now is a very good time of year to bring such pieces to us. Perhaps a simple repair will give you a pin that will seem new. A missing stone or stones replaced will restore a ring to favor. If the piece is old style we shall be glad to make suggestions and prepare designs to utilize the stones.

More people should form the habit of bringing all their jewelry to us once a year to be examined very carefully. A stone which appears perfectly secure to the naked eye may prove to have a very much worn setting when examined under a jeweler's glass. To have such settings reinforced is inexpensive, and may save you the loss of the stone later on.

Plan to bring your jewelry to us for examination before you leave for the summer. We repair all kinds of silver, and fancy leather goods as well. Our general repair counter is at the rear of our first floor.

CRAIG DEMANDS OPEN WAR ON IRISH REBELS

By International News Service.

London, June 1.—A report that Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, has asked the British government to take aggressive military action on the Ulster frontier was follow today by word from Belfast that soldiers were replacing the police at some points on the border of Tyrone County, where violent fighting has been raging between Republicans and Orangemen.

The soldiers were reported to be throwing up entrenchments to defend their positions.

Sir James Craig, accompanied by the Marquis of Londonderry, Minister of Education in the Ulster government, arrived from Belfast this morning and immediately went into conference with Premier Lloyd George and Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill.

STAND OF ULSTERMEN.

Upon leaving the conference, Sir James made the following statement to International News Service:

"The discussions are over until tomorrow. I am asking only that Ulster not be molested. The British government is sympathetic towards our request. We do not care what happens to South Ireland (Irish Free State) so long as they leave us alone."

So serious has the situation become in the western part of Ulster province that Unionists are urging a regular military offensive by British troops against the Republicans.

As Premier Craig went into conference with Secretary Churchill today, dispatches were being received from Belfast telling of new outbreaks of guerilla warfare in which twelve persons were killed and scores wounded.

Heavy fighting is reported also from the frontiers of Donegal and Tyrone Counties, where the Republicans have seized large sections of territory which they fortified.

There are massive concentrations of English troops in Ulster supported with artillery, tanks, armored cars and airplanes. Also, there are many British warships in Ulster waters. Heretofore these English troops have been held in reserve for defensive purposes.

Sir James Craig now insists that they be utilized for a systematic military campaign against the Republicans, particularly in the West, where Republicans have occupied a number of Ulster border towns.

URGE AN OFFENSIVE.

Other members of the Ulster Cabinet are reported to have asked the British government to open an offensive against the Irish republican troops all along the Ulster frontier.

Sir James received word that the situation is particularly serious in the region of Strabane, where a whole brigade of republicans is reported on the move into Ulster.

The Anglo-Irish conference over the Collins-De Valera coalition agreement has begun to drift aimlessly and it is admitted by Downing street officials that the situation has become more dangerous.

It was reported that Michael Collins would go to Dublin, but this was denied. On the contrary, it was said at Collins' headquarters that Commandant Cavan, chief of staff of the Irish Free State army, had been summoned to London.

The next move in the negotiations is up to Collins, Arthur Griffith and their colleagues. The proposed Irish constitution is not yet completed and furthermore Eamon De Valera and his followers have not yet replied definitely whether they would accept the treaty.

Parliament has adjourned over the Whitsuntide holiday and it will be impossible to debate any Irish settlement until June 12, when Commons will reassemble. Premier Lloyd George was to have gone to Criccieth, Wales, for a short rest, but in view of the growing menace of the Irish situation it was considered likely that he would revise his plans.

VIEWS ARE DIVERGENT.

In the meantime, De Valera, who is the storm centre of the Anglo-Irish negotiations, remains silent in Dublin. It is understood, however, that he is in communication with Collins. The Tories, both in Parliament and in the British Cabinet, are pressing for immediate action and are bitterly opposing any concessions towards the Irish Coalitionists.

While divergent views exist in the Cabinet, Secretary Churchill made it plain that the bulk of official opinion is as follows:

The Irish Free State must accept the Anglo-Irish peace treaty and abide by all of its conditions and terms. Any official government documents drawn by the Irish Free State Government, such as the Constitution and Factional Agreements, must conform with the treaty, otherwise the English will again occupy Ireland with troops and govern it as formerly.

It is regarded as entirely unlikely that Sir James Craig can be brought into contact with the Irish Free State representatives for discussion of the border situation. Sir James was accompanied to London by the Marquis of Londonderry, minister of education in the Ulster government.

Eleven Are Slain as Fighting Rages in Belfast

Belfast, June 1 (By the Associated Press).—Grosvenor road was the scene of intense firing today. A boy was struck by one of the bullets and killed.

In Falls road, adjoining, there was considerable shooting at an earlier hour. Four wounded persons were taken to hospitals from this area.

Special Constable Roulston, whose shooting precipitated last night's troubles, died of his wounds, and this, together with the death today of another wounded person, brought the total of the fatalities from yesterday's shootings to eleven.

A pathetic incident of last night's disorders was the shooting of a blind man and his landlady, who were standing at the door of their home. A house was afire nearby at the time, and the water from the hose flowing down the street washed over the bodies which were not removed for an hour and a half.

The military have replaced the special constabulary on the Tyrone-Donegal border at Castlederg and other points.

More than thirty houses were burned in the Milfield and Peter's Hill area of Belfast yesterday. Today a public house in Peter's Hill was burned. Heavy firing occurred near the Stanhope street area, after which the police made extensive raids for arms.

Two persons in responsible positions were found in possession of important documents when arrested last night in the Falls area, where the police made searches.

The result, it was officially stated, may be disclosures of a startling nature.

The barracks of the special constables at Crossmaglen and Jackson House, two miles inside the South Armagh border, were attacked today by armed men.

Heavy rifle firing ensued for a half hour, after which the attacking party withdrew, apparently without casualties.

The British destroyer Warwick today held up a steamer from Moville to Londonderry in Lough Foyle, off the northern County Londonderry coast. The destroyer put police on board the steamer. They searched the passengers, but made no arrests.

WOBURN MAN'S BRIDE REPENTS ELOPEMENT

Mrs. Rusling, who eloped with her husband, a naval war veteran, three years ago, after a courtship that began in a telephone conversation, now seeks divorce on grounds of cruelty and non-support.

MRS. WALTER E. RUSLING

DIVORCE SUIT ENDS PHONE ROMANCE

The "telephone romance" of Walter E. Rusling of No. 22 Franklin street, Woburn, who eloped three years ago with pretty Edith Helen Forbes, daughter of Mrs. Laura Forbes of No. 61 Brooks street, Brookline, has run on the shoals of the Cambridge divorce court.

Mrs. Rusling, who has gone back to live with her mother, has brought suit for her freedom from her young husband, a sign painter, four years her junior, and a former 'gob,' charging him with non-support, and with cruel and abusive treatment.

Mr. Rusling is twenty-five, a member of the American Legion, and saw service in the navy during the war. Mrs. Rusling is twenty-nine.

At the time of the elopement, in June, 1919, according to Mr. Rusling, in his answer to the charges preferred against him by his wife, "we loved each other devotedly." Now he asserts his wife has changed and he cannot even see their two-year-old daughter Ruth.

The blending of voices over a tingling telephone wire started the romance that bloomed in matrimony and now threatens to end on the rocks of divorce.

Wright, Boston representative for the Selwyns, since Mr. Wright settled in Boston more than ten years ago, assuming the management of the Plymouth Theatre and later the Park Square, now the Selwyn.

LAYS COUPLE'S DEATH TO VERMIN EXTERMINATOR

New York, June 1.—The sudden death of Fremont H. Jackson and his wife, a former Lawrence, Mass., woman, in their apartment in the Hotel Margaret, Brooklyn, April 26, was before County Judge Reuben L. Haskell, when Attorney Edward J. Byrne asked permission to inspect the minutes of the grand jury, which indicted Eli Du Puy, manager of the hotel, on charges of manslaughter.

Byrne contended blame should be placed solely on Albert Braditch, a vermin exterminator, who was indicted with Du Puy. Decision was reserved.

4 RESCUED AT REVERE AS BOAT UPSETS

Hundreds of persons lined the beach at Revere watching an heroic attempt of a high school lad to swim half a mile to shore to secure aid for a young girl and two other high school boys, all of whom had been thrown into the water when their sail boat capsized.

Harry Lesser, nineteen years old, of No. 99 Endicott avenue, was the youth who gallantly risked his own life in an effort to save his companions. He was taken out of the water by a rescue party, who had seen the accident and put off for the scene in a row boat.

THREE OTHERS SAVED.

The others who were saved are Miss Irene Glasser, sixteen years old, of No. 36 Dolphin avenue; Thomas Bradley, sixteen years old, of No. 58 Dolphin avenue, and Dyvia Weintraub, sixteen years old, of No. 6 Orr square, all of Revere.

Revere and Metropolitan Park police were notified of the accident and arrived on the scene with pulmotors some time after the catastrophe were brought to shore.

The young woman and the three lads hired a sail boat and were cruising about off the beach when their craft was overturned by a sudden gust. All four climbed on to the keel and when it seemed that the boat would be carried down the bay by the outgoing tide, Lesser, who is a strong swimmer, volunteered to try and reach shore and summon assistance.

EXHAUSTED BY SWIM.

He started out, but the half-mile swim in the choppy sea was too much for him and he was just on the point of exhaustion when he was picked up by men who had seen his plight and come out in a boat.

They were Victor Wells of No. 7 Dolphin avenue, Charles Lee of No. 48 Boulevard, Thomas Haywood of No. 42 Campbell avenue and Max Cohen of the Bay State Yacht Club. After hauling Lesser in they continued on and picked up the young woman and the other two lads. All three were in the last stages of exhaustion.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store a ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You simply darken your hair or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

This faded hair, though so full of grace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. The Wyeth Chemical Co., New York, N. Y.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A GAME OF CHANCE

By Lily Wandel

"CORA," asked Lynne Wickham, "did you take a chance from that little boy who was here this morning?"

Cora nodded. "Usually I don't do anything like that, but he was such a cute, freckled-faced chap—a ton of coal or a barrel of flour—of course I won't win."

"I did, too 'n spite of Father Wickham's opinion. Cora, you don't realize how fortunate you are in not having your father-in-law in the house. Really sometimes I think I can't stand it another day. I imagine, he objects to my taking a chance on anything and he has actually persuaded Roy that it is gambling and a waste of money! I did not really care a bit about taking this chance, but the spirit of opposition is in me. I hope I win, if only to spite Father Wickham!"

Cora did not agree. "It's such a little thing, if he objects, I would take any more chances, Lynne."

Lynne rose with a toss of his pretty head. "Indeed! I am to give always and forever. You don't realize what is means having Father Wickham in the house! Whenever Roy and I have the least little scrap, Father Wickham takes his son's part. Cora, it would be a joke if I won the ton of coal!"

It was about a week later when Lynne, a-swering the door bell, faced the freckled-faced boy again.

She had forgotten all about the ton of coal.

"Lady, you won the ton of coal!"

"What!" gasped Lynn, hardly daring to believe the news.

"Yes'm," continued the boy carelessly and began to whistle.

"I won the ton ofcoal!" To tell Father Wickham and that she actually had won a ton of coal for a quarter! To have proved that it did pay to take a chance! What would Roy say now? "When will I get it, little boy?" she asked feverishly.

"This afternoon," he answered promptly, "the Diamond Coal Company will deliver it. You have to pay a dollar for the delivery, lady."

He held out a grimy little hand.

Lynne handed him the dollar for delivery and watched him run off, and then still in a delicious daze stood thinking of her good fortune.

IN A STATE OF BLISS.

A little later when the man folks came home she bombarded them with her news. They were, of coure, amazed and pleased. Roy kissed her half a dozen times and said she was a mighty celever little woman. Father Wickham patted her shoulder.

"My dear," he said gently, "I do not approve of any form of gambling, but I am glad that you won this ton of coal because it makes you so very happy."

Lynne kissed the old gentleman in a burst of good nature—she could afford to be nice since she had triumphed.

The next morning Lynne hurried around the corner where Cora lived to tell her the wonderful news. The words burned on her lips, so that as Cora's door opened the front door it happened that Cora, too, seemed to have some very important news and also began to talk.

"Stop talking, Lynne," screamed Cora. "Listen to me—I've won the barrel of flour!"

Lynne did stop and stared at her friend in amazement. "Cora, you won the barrel of flour and I won the ton of coal."

The bright smile left Cora's round face. "What! That's mighty strange—did you get your coal?"

"Not yet—I guess it will come this morning. I paid a dollar for delivery. That's fair enough."

Cora looked thoughtful. "I paid a dollar for delivery, too, and my flour hasn't arrived. Lynne, telephone the coal company and find out why it hasn't come."

Lynne rushed to the telephone. "Diamond Coal Company? This is Mrs. Roy Wickham talking—I am the winner of a ton of coal and was raffled off and I understand you are to make delivery—What! Thirty women have called you up so far—all winners! Gang of crooks. Just a slick game! Good-bye."

After a while Lynne said in a dismal voice, "I guess I ought to notify the police, only I don't want Father Wickham or Roy to know."

Lynne went home, heavy hearted, mortified. How could she ever face the "I-told-you-so" of Father Wickham and Roy. Oh, if she could only had never tried to win anything!

Early in the afternoon the maid came smiling to Lynne's room and announced briefly: "The coal's here!"

Lynne stared at her through heavy eyes, then she comprehended and flew past the heavy-footed girl, downstairs to the back door.

"How do you do, Mr. Wickham?" bowed the teamster, "sign here, please, the ton of coal you won- ma'am!"

THE SECRET OUT.

Lynne's hand shook as she scribbled her name. Then with scarlet cheeks she flew into the library where Father Wickham sat reading.

"Well, the ton of coal is here." She stood very erect in her triumph. Roy and words tipped with arrogance.

"Congratulations!" He seemed so genuinely pleased that suddenly Lynne felt ashamed of herself and hurried from the room.

Before she kitchen door she stopped, arrested by the teamster's voice. He was explaining something to the maid.

"Understand? Ice Mister Wickham he says to my boss, 'deliver the ton of coal and say it is the ton she won! I don't want her disappointed!' Lynn did not wait to hear any more.

"Can't we keep it our secret?" he begged. "The others will never know, though the little freckled faced boy got a-way."

"But the newspapers—Roy will read it!"

"I've spoken to the editors of our two papers in town and asked them, owing to the number of prominent ladies involved, not to make this public."

Lynne smiled through her tears. I'm through with chances, Father, Dear, Wickham!"

"Until the next time!" he teased. "Well," she laughed and kissed his cheek, "I'll take a chance if you any time!"

HEAR NEW PLEA TO REMOVE 'SYNAGOGUE'

The Protestant churches of Massachusetts today joined with the people of Jewish faith in a request to mand that Sargent's painting "The Synagogue" be removed from the Boston Public Library.

"We support the Jew's needs the removal because of religious paths and because of enmity the Jewish faith," declared the Rt. Dr. Lorenzo Sawtelle, representative Massachusetts Protestant churches at a hearing before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Anything can be twisted to mean as much to a fault as one's prejudices may permit," said Dr. Sawtelle. "Protestants sympathize with the Jews in their feeling about this picture. It represents the Jew of the as decadent. As a matter of fact, ashamed of what some Christians do.

Mention was made of the fact that Francis J. Swayze, one of the most prominent Catholics in Boston, had attended the art in Europe, and advocated the removal of the picture.

Representation to the Boston Library Trustees was made by Mr. Swayze himself, but the artist gave no indication that he would withdraw the picture from view. While the trustees are powerless to act because of the contract with Sargent, the Society can take the painting out of the basement display. Mr. Sawtelle said. He could then be instructed to sell it by the State Department of Education, but not as a bequest from the

"The Boston Public Library is the library of the City of Boston, but of the Commonwealth," he said. "The land is owned by the state and was allowed to be used by the city on condition that 'all citizens of the Commonwealth shall have at all right of entrance therein free of charge.'"

He said that any system which allowed a group of trustees to accept a work that offends such a large body of its citizens is minority rule and contrary to our democratic institutions.

Assistant Attorney-General Louis Goldberg spoke the opposition of 15,000 members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association and Leo J. Lyons and Isidore H. Fox men attacked "The Synagogue." In behalf of B'Nai Brith

RAID AT NAPOLI 'PARTY AFFAIR'

The famous Napoli Hotel raid, in which fourteen Spanish and Cuban Latin-American proprietors were arrested, charged with unlawfully possessing liquor was a "party affair at which Arthur L. Davis of the anti-saloon league and newspaper men were invited guests of prohibition agents it was revealed today at a hearing before United States Commissioner Hayes.

Prohibition Enforcement Officer James Roberts objected to Commissioner Hayes finding that Davis had been invited to witness the raid which occurred two weeks ago.

"I merely telephoned Mr. Davis to eat his dinner at the Napoli and said he might see something," said Mr. Roberts

Chief Roberts' explanation of the presence of reporters at the raid was that they "probably knew a raid was to be made within 50 miles of the hotel"

The hearing ended today, Commissioner Hayes announcing that his decision would come within a week.

OLD OPEN AIR MARKET NOW AUTO PARKING SPACE

And now the old established open-air market on South Market street, between Commercial street and Atlantic avenue, is swept aside by the march of progress. There was no opposition. Captain Bernard Hoppe, of the traffic squad commended that parking be limited to one hour and Fire Chief John J. Tabor and District Chief E. J. Shallow suggested that a space of twenty-five feet be reserved so that fire apparatus could get through without difficulty.

McCALL NOT AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE

Washington, June 1.—Former Governor Samuel W. McCall will not run on an independent ticket in Massachusetts against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, thus splitting the Republican vote, and practically insuring election of a Democratic Senator. This was the emphatic statement today of close friends of the former Massachusetts Governor following a series of conferences with him.

SEIBERLICH PUT ON ELECTION BOARD

Mayor Curley today appointed ex-Senator Frank Seiberlich to his old berth as election commissioner, in place of Hon. Wasserman, whose resignation takes effect July 1.

The mayor appointed ex-Representative James P. Regan of Roxbury to the same office, to succeed James A. Dorsey, who will also resign July 1.

Mr. Seiberlich is a Republican and is appointed as such because of the law which requires the board to be bi-partisan. He has been a staunch supporter of the mayor

4 RESCUED AT REVERE AS BOAT UPSETS

Hundreds of persons lined the beach at Revere watching an heroic attempt of a high school lad to swim half a mile to shore to secure aid for a young girl and two other high school boys, all of whom had been thrown into the water when their sail boat capsized.

Harry Lesser, nineteen years old, of No. 99 Endicott avenue, was the youth who gallantly risked his own life in an effort to save his companions. He was taken out of the water by a rescue party, who had seen the accident and put off for the scene in a row boat.

THREE RESCUES SAVED.

The others who were saved are Miss Irene Glasser, sixteen years old, of No. 84 Dolphin avenue; Thomas Bradley, sixteen years old, of No. 86 Dolphin avenue, and Orvis Weintraub, sixteen years old, of No. 6 Orr street, all of Revere.

Revere and Metropolitan Park police were notified of the accident and arrived on the scene with pulmotors some time after the castaways were brought to shore.

The young woman and the three lads hired a sail boat and were cruising about off the beach when their craft was overturned by a sudden gust. All four climbed on to the keel and when it seemed that the boat might be carried down the bay by the outgoing tide, Lesser, who is a strong swimmer, volunteered to try and reach shore and summon assistance.

EXHAUSTED BY SWIM.

He started out, but the half mile swim in the choppy sea was too much for him and he was just on the point of exhaustion when he was picked up by men who had seen his plight and come out in a boat.

They were Victor Weiss of No. 1 Dolphin avenue, Charles Lee of No. 48 Boulevard, Thomas Haywood of No. 48 Campbell avenue and Max Cohen of the Bay State Yacht Club. After hauling Lesser in they continued on and picked up the young woman and the other two lads. All three were in the last stages of exhaustion.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. A little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning your gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and who desire a youthful and attractive appearance are busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. Wyeth Chemical Co., New York, N.Y.

SOCIETY YOUTH HELD FOR THEFT OF LANTERN

Berwick, Pa., June 1. — Carter Leidy, socially prominent young Philadelphian, whose elopement with "Fifi" Widener, daughter of Joseph Widener, created a sensation in society circles, and who subsequently came here to don overalls and learn the steel business from the ground up, is apparently within the grasp of the law. He visited Burgess Kitchen in an effort to have the charges dropped, but the Burgess was adamant.

Leidy is charged with larceny arising an automobile while intoxicated, and reckless driving. The Berwick police say the wealthy young steel worker drove his car up to a "silent" traffic policeman unfastened the red warning lantern and flung it into the river. The larceny charge is, a result of the lantern prank.

The charges against Leidy will be given special consideration at a meeting of the Berwick Council June 6.

Harry Malster, tailor, of No. 1967 Columbus avenue, Roxbury was busy in his shop when three men entered. One of them thrust a revolver under Malster's nose and demanded his money.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A GAME OF CHANCE

By Lily Wandel

"CORA," asked Lynne Wickham, "did you take a chance from that little boy who was here this morning?"

Cora nodded "Usually I don't do anything like that, but he was such a cute, freckled-faced chap—a ton of coal or a barrel of flour—of course I won't win."

"I did, too in spite of Father Wickham's opinion Cora, you don't realize how fortunate you are to not having your father-in-law in the house. Really sometimes I think I can't stand it another day. I imagine he objects to my taking a chance on anything and he has actually persuaded Roy that it is gambling and is waste of money! I did not really care a bit about taking this chance, but the spirit of opposition is in me. I hope I win, if only to spite Father Wickham."

Cora did not agree. "It's such a nice thing, if he objects, I would take any more chances, Lynne," Cora rose with a toss of her pretty head. "Indeed! I am to give always and forever. Too dom-ineering what it means having Father Wickham in the house! Whenever Roy and I have the least little scrap, Father Wickham takes his son's part. Well, it would be a joke if I won the ton of coal!"

It was about a week later when Lynne, answering the door bell, faced the freckled-faced boy again.

She had forgotten all about the ton of coal.

"Lady, you won the ton of coal!"

"What," gasped Lynn, hardly daring to believe the news.

"You won," confirmed the boy carelessly and began to whistle.

"I won the ton ofcoal!" To tell Father Wickham that she actually had won a ton of coal for a quarter! To have proved that it did pay to take a chance! What would Roy say now? "When will I get it, big boy?" she asked feverishly.

"This afternoon," he answered promptly. "the Diamond Coal Company will deliver it. You have to pay a dollar for the delivery, lady." He held out a grimy little hand.

Lynne handed him the dollar for delivery and watched him run out and then still in a delicious daze stood thinking of her good fortune.

IN A STATE OF BLISS.

A little later when the men folks came home she bombarded them with her news. They were, of course, amused and pleased. Roy kissed her half a dozen times and said she was a mighty clever little woman. Father Wickham patted her shoulder.

"Well dear," he said gently, "I do not approve of any form of gambling, but I am glad that you won the ton of coal because it makes you so very happy."

Lynne kissed the old gentleman in a burst of good nature—she could afford to be nice since she had triumphed.

The next morning Lynne hurried around the corner where Cora lived to tell her the wonderful news. The words burned on her lips, so that as soon as Cora opened the front door it happened that Cora, too, seemed to have some very important news and also began to talk.

"Stop talking, Lynne," screamed Cora. Listen to me—I've won the barrel of flour!"

Lynne did stop and stared at her friend in amazement. "Cora, you won a barrel of flour and I won the ton of coal."

The bright smile left Cora's round face. "What! That's twenty grains—did you get your coal?"

"Not yet—I guess it will come this morning. I paid a dollar for delivery. That's fair enough."

Cora looked thoughtful. "I paid a dollar for delivery, too, and my flour hasn't arrived. Lynne, telephone the coal company and find out why it hasn't come."

Lynne rushed to the telephone. "Diamond Coal Company? This is Mrs. Roy Wickham talking—I am the winner of a ton of coal that was given off and I understand you are to make delivery—What? Thirty women have called you up so far—all wanting coal—Father Wickham and Roy. Oh, if she could only had never tried to win anything!"

Early in the afternoon the maid came smiling to Lynne's room and announced briefly. "The coal's here."

Lynne stared at her through heavy eyes, then she comprehended and flew past the heavy-footed girl, downstairs to the back door.

"How do, Mis' Wickham," bowed the teamster, "sign here, please, the ton of coal you won ma'am!"

THE SECRET OUT.

Lynne's hand shook as she scribbled her name. Then with scarlet cheeks she flew into the library where Father Wickham sat read ing.

"Well, the ton of coal is here" She stood very erect in her triumph, her words tipped with arrogance.

"Congratulations!" He seemed so genuinely pleased that suddenly Lynne felt ashamed of herself and hurried from the room.

Before the kitchen door she stopped, arrested by the teamster's voice. He was explaining something to the maid

"Understand?" Mister Wickham he says to my boss, 'deliver the ton of coal and say it is the ton we won' I don't want her disappointed' Lynn did not wait to hear any more.

Somehow, some way, she was back in the library on Father Wickham's lap, her head on his shoulder, weeping like one heart broken.

"Can't we keep it our secret?" he begged "The fellows are caught, though the little freckled faced boy got away."

"But the newspapers—Roy will read it!"

"I've spoken to the editors of our two papers in town and asked them, owing to the number of prominent ladies involved, not to make this public."

Lynne smiled through her tears I'm through with chances, Father Wickham!"

"Well the next time!" he teased "Well," she laughed and kissed his cheek. "I'll take a chance on you any time!"

TWO BRANDS OF BOOZE SOLD IN WORCESTER

Worcester, June 1 — In yesterday's instalment of the Boston American's expose, the various kinds of drinks sold in Worcester were described, together with the prices charged.

Whether a customer receives good or bad whiskey depends almost entirely upon his personal appearance. If he has a good "front" and shows evidence of being discriminating he gets the "best." Otherwise the customer receives hootch.

One of the first places visited by the American representative was a near-beer saloon on a side street only a few steps from City Hall. The custom in vogue in some Boston saloons of barking the liquor carried on the person by a man not otherwise engaged in labor, was practiced here.

The man in question had two bottles of whiskey, one good and the other bad. The "best" was handed over to the bartender, who poured a drink and then passed the bottle back to its custodian. The price was 75 cents, and the bartender rang up the sale with an air of conscious rectitude. Peculiarly enough, the price did not appear on the cash register.

BEGIN, BUT NO LABEL.

At the same place real beer at 50 cents a bottle was purchased, the bottles bearing no labels, and being dark brown in color. The bartender, an affable type who evidently tried to entertain the customers, said it came from Providence.

The next stop by the American representative was a third rate hotel, a few blocks distant, and with in hailing distance of one of the main thoroughfares. Here refreshments were dispensed guardedly in a sour-smelling room on the second floor. The odor of stale whiskey mingled with that of dead cigar and cigarette butts.

A grade of liquor corresponding to the cheap bar whiskey of license days was purchased here for 60 cents a drink. Plain water was served as chaser. The man who made the sale said that business was "rotten" for the time being, but that it would pick up before long.

He said the situation had been given undesirable publicity, and as a result the police had been more active than usual. He expressed confidence that this condition would not last.

Another hotel of the same type, located on a busy street, sold whiskey of a fair quality for $10 a quart and 75 cents a drink. Beer for 50 cents a bottle also was to be had. This hotel still maintains a bar, and the selling is done there, in its natural habitat. There was considerable talk at the bar about the activities of "spotters" and the American representative was favored with glances of suspicion. According to Chief of Police Hill, his liquor squad are all known, making it difficult for them to obtain evidence.

Suspicion of strangers was carried to even greater lengths in several other places visited, the American representative being assured with considerable heat that there was "nothin' doin'."

SERVED WITH SPEED.

In another saloon in the business section, however, the apparent honesty of the American representative overcame the scruples of the bartender. Nonchalantly ordering "rye," the American man was served with a glass of whiskey, for which he was forced to pay 75 cents. The whiskey was poured from a bottle kept by the bartender, and a half-pint could be had for $3.50. Beer at 50 cents a bottle also was sold here. The bartender discouraged an attempt to contract for a barrel of bottled beer. He said only those "in right" could buy it in bulk.

At a barroom advantageously located at the junction of two streets, whiskey was bought for 50 cents a drink, and beer for the same price per bottle.

QUALITY WAS POOR.

A block away the price of whiskey was sixty cents, with no apparent reason for the increase, both being of poor quality. At the last place, a near-beer saloon, liquor also was sold in bulk for $3.50 a pint.

In all these places every person who entered was scrutinized carefully, and strangers were not received with acclaim. At one place it was explained to the American representative that the liquor peddlars had their own trade, and did not care for new customers.

In fact, it might be said that their clientele was somewhat exclusive."

MORGAN FIXING ALLIED LOAN TERMS

By BASIL D. WOON
Boston American Correspondent, Special Cable

Paris, June 1.—J. P. Morgan is understood to have made an important declaration at the world's "super supreme council," which is now deciding upon the financial fate of Europe at the Hotel Astoria.

No echo of the famous financier's words leaked out, however, owing to the gentlemen's agreement among the members of the financial congress not to breathe a word of the proceedings until the close of the deliberations.

WORDING TERMS.

It is understood, though, that the bankers are now wording a memorandum to be addressed to all the Allies containing the terms on which an international loan might be granted.

This memorandum will state plainly that a loan can only be issued if the Allies agree to forego a first mortgage on the German imperial property given under the treaty of Versailles, practically transferring the visitors' lien to subscribers to the loan.

Furthermore, the Allies must agree that a large part of the loan be used by Germany to bring back sanity to Reich finances.

FRANCE MAY BALK.

Rumors regarding this stipulation were being feverishly debated in diplomatic circles. It is inferred that France will not be likely to agree to such a plan, insisting that the whole loan be issued into the reparations account of which France would receive 52 per cent.

French hopes were greatly dampened by an authoritative report that the bankers do not believe it possible to issue a loan of more than $50,000,000.

MRS. OELRICHS' 1-POUND DOG UPSETS HOTEL

Paris, June 1.—The dignity of the Ritz restaurant was disturbed by a series of yelps which nearly caused many the venerable high priest of gastronomy to suffer a stroke of apoplexy. The cause of the yelps was discovered when it was found that Mrs. Herman Oelrichs had broken the strictest rule of the famous hostelry that no hotel is admitted.

A supper party had called for a meeting of the head manager, Oscar, and several stewards. To this assembly Mrs. Oelrichs proudly displayed the smallest lap dog ever seen.

The little pet is named "Baby." Its tiny head and body was developed by a poodle haircut given it by Albert, the world's most famous dog dresser.

Weighing about one pound, "Baby" has ten pounds of social influence. Mrs. Oelrichs' intention that she would have it "Baby" was not allowed to restrain the departure of the social lioness to the Maxim's. Upon Prince Troubetzkoy's word that he be allowed to bring his dog also, and Elinor Glyn sent a hurry call for hers.

Demands the Right to Buy Liquor for Home Cooking

New York, June 1—Proceedings for an injunction requiring Prohibition Director Day to give him permits to purchase all the liquor he claims he needs for culinary purposes in his home were instituted in Federal Court today by E. Koehler, cigar maker.

MAYOR WHEELER FLAYED AS RUM TOLERATOR

Gloucester, June 1.—Charges that Mayor Percy W. Wheeler, as head of the Gloucester police department is making no attempt to curb bootlegging or moonshining and that he is letting the city go to ruin, were made in open council meeting by Alderman Henry H. Parsons.

Alderman Parsons said "How much is he worth to the city when he hardly ever goes to the police station? There is no excuse. He has no alibi for he has got a city marshal of his own moulding and manufacturing who, I have no doubt, would be more active, and I am sure his officers would, also, if the commander-in-chief were not asleep at the switch."

Alderman Parsons then announced that one or both must be eliminated from politics for the good of the city."

WANDERING BRAVES WANDER BACK TO THE BACK BAY TEPEE

BRAVES BATTLE THE GIANTS TODAY

By NICK FLATLEY.

Fred Mitchell and the Braves returned to the biggest ball yard in creation this afternoon, and will linger in its classic reaches for the best part of a month. May be the worst part of the month also, but that rests with the future. The Tribe is back, with a long home session ahead, and the ultimate chance to get back into a race that hasn't quite escaped them yet.

The team, rated as a pennant-chaser in the Spring, has had more than his share of second hand gas buggy. The club of the antler has fallen heavily on the Brave brow and the where, ever since early last April when the curtain went up, as they say.

Since then there has been just one good spot — the visit to St. Louis where the Braves snatched off four games in a row and han ing the Cardinals who were just about to leap to the east through the floors of a 61 mit alone. That almost showed there was some power to the Mitchell machine, but said it will have to be brought out very promptly.

Boston Fans Willing to Give Braves a Chance

Boston fans, after a tough month watching the B. R. Sox lose are willing to give the dread Giants one more tumble. If they flop the time the boys will get the cold shoulder from the Pink and they'll never will get their pay checks from the drift.

When the team went away from here not a soul bet one to three, but since then things have picked up a bit. Frank Miller rejoined the troupe and did some good pitching until he was cracked on the head by a liner the other day. The recovery finally rounded form and is ready to go a couple of wins. He was tested yesterday but he's now a free for his regular turn and will win a lot more than he loses.

Marquard and McGraw, the wise, have turned in good work while Pillneln now that bot worth or is back in the fold should prove a consolation some sort or

Injuries Hurt the Team When It Was Abroad

Injuries have hampered the team in alien parts the biggest blow coming when Captain Billy Southworth was wrecked but after the team left St. Louis. When Captain Will was in the village made famous or something by the housewife he was the best ball player in the league. He hit .400 plus in that series, and was pulling the game almost

He will be back very shortly and his reappearance should boom stock considerably. Larry Kopf also is keen on the stuff, and he is ready to go again. His mishap gave Barbare a chance to burn into a regular job, and prove that his batting eye is still among the best.

In fact, the crippies have recovered in time to participate in the home-coming festivities if necessary and Manager Mitchell will have all his street a to turn against the invasion which the Giants must celebrate at the Wigwam afternoon. If the McGraws weren't in the league the Braves would be up there, for they have got a lot out of ten, or something like that, thus far in the clamber.

Giants Will Be Here Rest of the Week

Three bodies remain around for the rest of the week, and the Cardinals come along as the first section of the Western dismiss. There should be a lot of kick in the two opening series anyhow. The Braves want to get even with the New Yorkers while the Reds and will be looking purposed for revenge.

On the road the braves don't cheer and but, thirteen which isn't very good but not so bad as it might be. It was a considerably better clip than they could hit in their early Eastern campaigning. They took one game in New York and divided a pair in Brooklyn. Then they went to Chicago to lose two and win one. They broke even in four with the Pirates, but dropped the only two they played in Chicago.

Were Thumped Three in a Row by the Giants

After so long the cardinals four times they returned to New York and were thumped three in a row and could win but two out of five from the Robins. Manager Mitchell isn't discouraged ed enough to deny admit that he expected his team to be much closer to the actual thing happens to be the case this bit in first of June

Meeting the Giants in a tough opening assignment but the boys they are the harder they fall. Phil Douglas and McQuillan were the morning nominations for mound

TENDLER READY FOR BARRETT

Philadelphia, June 1 — Can Lew Tendler stand up if Bobby Barrett reaches his jawbone with a right hand in the Philadelphia National League ball park tomorrow?

That's the big question agitating the sporting populace these days, as the hour nears for the most important fight Quaker City has staged in many years.

Bobby Barrett

"I guess I've taken 'em as hard as Barrett can pass 'em out—and no one ever has knocked me cuckoo," asserts Tendler

If I can reach that jaw of Tendler's just once with some real steam behind it, I guess they'll be regarded but once-seven seconds later as the main fight Leonard, is the opponent of Barrett who has knocked over 60 men in 60 battles.

LEWIS' HEADLOCKS BEAT GRANDOVICH

HARVARD PLAYS BROWN THIS AFTERNOON

The Harvard baseball team at four o'clock this afternoon at Soldiers Field will try to avenge itself for the 8 to 5 defeat that Brown gave at Providence on the holiday.

With Eddie Goode, Harvard's star hurler, on the mound, the heavy hitting Brunonians will find the going a lot harder.

The big question seems to be "Can Leddy down Jack Slattery's team twice in three days?" It is probable that Coach Snell will start one of his other bears against the Crimson batters and save Leedy to put in later in the game

Another thing that will favor the wearers of the Crimson will be the fact that they are playing at home

DORCHESTER DIVIDED OVER BLEACHERS

Residents of the Field's Corner section of Dorchester appear to be split up on the question of bleachers for the Gibson playgrounds Chairman Shea of the Park and Recreation Department represented the city at a mass meeting held on the question last night. Many of the residents seem to think there are sufficient accommodations without the bleachers, while the younger folks are battling for more seats.

GEORGETOWN IN BIG GAME WITH B. C.

The hardest and fastest game the Boston Colegt nine will have to play this season will be staged this afternoon at Alumni Field, with Georgetown University Georgetown comes undefeated, with a string of twenty-one victories, and is confident of adding the Eagle to the collection of victims

The line that represents Georgetown this season is the best ever rned out by the Washington attuition. It has defeated the strongest teams in the South and East, including Holy Cross, Tufts, Dartmouth, Cornell, Georgia Tech and Pittsburgh. It is with good reason that the Blue and Gray aggregation has been hailed as Eastern college champions. If Georgetown defeats Boston College this afternoon and Holy Cross on Saturday, it will likewise capture the Eastern Jesuit Colleges laurel wreath

Ted Palmer

Much of the credit for Georgetown's enviable record must go to Reynolds and Hyman, their pair of twirling aces Both men have had several big league offers and doubtless would be an asset to any team in the big circuits. Reynolds is the probable choice for the game today, and if he occupies the box, the Eagle batsmen will have a hard time seeing the ball

Bill Kenyon, catcher for the Georgetown club, is rated as the best backstop in college baseball. At ready Kenyon has had offers from the New York and Cleveland American ball clubs. He is a perfect man behind the plate and his fast, sure throws have killed off dozens of attempted steals

Sheedy, first sacker for the Hilltoppers, has few equals in college baseball. He handles all kinds of throws with an ease and accuracy that makes him at all times dependable. The entire Georgetown infield is a combination of sure fielders and fast thinkers, who play scientific ball

Murphy, Sheehan and Florence the outer garden trio, are not inferior to the infield, and hits that go in the outfield have to be real wallops

The B. C. players are somewhat disappointed over the outcome of the Holy Cross game, but will attempt to set things right by upsetting Georgetown

GIRL SWIMMER ADDS NEW RECORD

Helen Wainwright

Miss Helen W a i n w r i g h t, who is fast forcing to the front in the swimming game, has added a new record to her already long list. She broke the swimming mark for 150 yards at the Memorial day event at Brighton Beach baths. The previous record was one minute forty-nine seconds. Miss W e l n wright made the distance in one minute and forty-eight seconds

VADALFI, LATEST ITALIAN MAT STAR, BATTLES LE BLANC

GRAPPLERS FIT FOR BIG TUSSLE TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Oreste Vadalfi, latest Italian star to blaze his way to the front ranks of the wrestling world, will have Georges LaBlanc, French Canadian heavyweight champion, as an opponent in a finish mat bout at the Grand Opera House tonight. The show will be staged under the direction of the Oud Howard management.

Greater Boston fans are eager to get a glimpse at Vadalfi, who is one of the leading challengers of George Calza, Italian champion.

Vadalfi recently invaded Boston, Calza's stronghold, with the express purpose of securing a shot at Calza. He figures that if he can score a flock of victories in this sector of the land of the brave that Calza will be obliged to meet him.

The latest Italian star has a very unique program all doped out. If he can't down LaBlanc, he will hurl a challenge at Renato Gardini. He has already engaged in one thrilling battle with Gardini and is of the opinion he will trounce him if they clash again. In the event of winning over Gardini, Vadalfi will then be ready to talk business with Calza.

La Blanc May Upset Plans of Italian

This LaBlanc person is very liable to upset Vadalfi's plans. The French Canadian champion comes with a reputation as a high grade grappler. He has toppled all opposition in tussles beyond the border. He is planning an extensive American campaign and does not intend to let Vadalfi upset his program.

LaBlanc isn't very enthusiastic about Italian wrestlers and says he will toss Calza for a loss after he gets through with his assignment tonight.

Strong Preliminary Card Is Also Booked

There should be plenty of action in the preliminaries. Charley Metro, Albanic Tiger, will take a whirl at Fred Moran, champion of the Navy Yard, while Joe Perelli, Italian Middleman, will clash with Frank Lurich, the Lithuanian light heavyweight.

Mickey Walker helped our batting average when he ran true to form and walloped Pal Reed. Which makes it twenty-five winning selections and two losses. All for a percentage of .926. They were betting even money at the kickoff, 10 to 7 with Reed a favorite at the end of the first round and 10 to 2 Walker at the end of the third.

Reed Will be Out of Game for Some Time

Pal Reed, by the way, will be out of the game for some time. Messrs Carter and Conley announce that the Natick middleweight suffered a compound fracture of his ankle when he was knocked down the first time in his bout with Walker. They attribute Pal's defeat to this injury.

Nate Seigel Would Take on Walker Once More

Nate Siegal, Reed's stablemate, is anxious to get revenge on Walker. It will be remembered that the Revere youth took on Mickey when the latter made his Boston debut.

> It was a whale of a battle with Walker grabbing a close decision. Nate took everything Walker had to offer in the way of punishment and handed out some healthy socks in return.
>
> After the Reed bout Walker was asked what he thought of Pal's hitting powers.
>
> "He's a sweet socker," replied the Bulger entry, "but he can't hit as hard as Siegal. Nate shook me up any number of times when he scored with heavy left and right hand wallops to the jaw."
>
> Siegal usually doesn't worry very well when pitted against a clever boxer. But against a free hitting fighter like Walker he would be able to perform to better advantage.

They Put One Over on Danny Edwards

They put one over on Danny Edwards, the colored bantamweight, at Providence on the holiday. He fought Terry Martin at an outdoor show. Everybody knows that Edward's asset is speed. He must have fast ring to show at his best. Martin, on the other hand, is a slow fighter who can punch when at close quarters. So they built a ring with heavy padding and a rough surface.

Edward's feet sunk into the heavy padding and caught on the rough surface which brought him down to Martin's speed. The rest was easy for Terry. Merely another case showing how ring battles are often won before the bell sounds at the opening of the first frame.

The Arena A. C., will not stage a show next week. There is no truth to the statement that Eddie Smith and Danny Edwards were booked for a return meeting here. Matchmaker Joe Goode believes a rest will do the boxing game a lot of good. He'll be back on the job with a bang up card a week from Monday night.

MLLE. LENGLEN NOT GAME, SAYS MRS. MALLORY

London, June 1—In an interview in the Pall Mall Gazette today, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American woman tennis champion, spoke in rather disparaging terms of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, her French rival, who defaulted to Mrs Mallory after losing one set in the American championship singles last year.

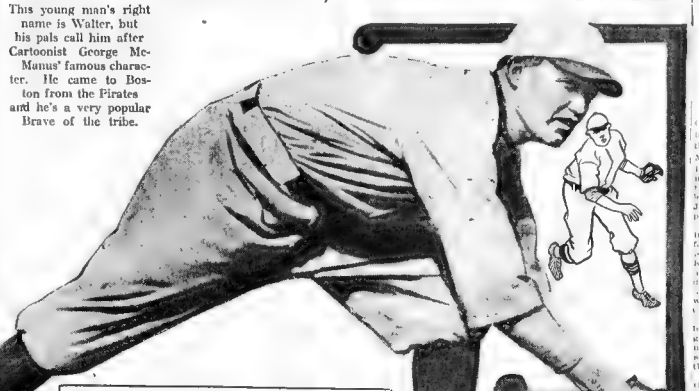
"Mlle. Lenglen cannot stand up to the big stuff," Mrs. Mallory is quoted as saying. "She plays wonderfully safe, but there is nothing else to her game."

Mrs. Mallory was undaunted by her defeat by Mrs. Beamish in the Middlesex singles and stated that she would be fit by the time the championship at Wimbledon comes on.

Tim Carroll is now pro at both the Rockland Country Club and the Samoset Hotel golf courses.

"DINTY" BARBARE, BRAVES' BEST BET

This young man's right name is Walter, but his pals call him after Cartoonist George McManus' famous character. He came to Boston from the Pirates and he's a very popular Brave of the tribe.



One of the Best Utility Men Now Playing Baseball

Walter Barbare of the Braves has proved himself one of the best utility men in the game. Thus far this season he has played short, second and first, in addition to appearing frequently as a pinch hitter. Just now he is playing second, where he was placed when the Braves invaded St. Louis and won four straight. He is hitting the ball again, and Larry Kopf has a real job ahead of him to oust Dinty from the lineup.

TWO GAMES FOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE

North Cambridge Knights of Columbus are booked to travel over to Ferryway Green, Malden, when they will swing their batons on the Malden Knights of Columbus in a Boston Twilight League fracas this evening. The schedule is on tap for the Dorchester Baseball Club to leave their orchard and tussle with J. J. Connolly Club of the Old Walpole Street Grounds, South End.

Both games will make it interesting for the late matinee baseball followers and plenty of good ball is expected. North Cambridge Knights, Dorchester and Malden are battling for their holds on first division position, and the J. J. Connolly club is hopeful of tacking a win from the strong St. Andrew's Catholic Club outfit.

Dan Leary, boss of the North Cambridge outfit, will send Jimmie Fitzgerald to the rubber, and Flannagan manager of the Malden K. of C. will send either Queen or Glennon to the top of the peak.

Claude Davidson, field general of the Dorchester team will be forced to use either Chippie Gaw or Al Krogg on the firing line, in order for the Connolly Club to give real battle. Madden will go in the box.

The J. J. Connolly Club has to hit its stride and unless Dorchester gives its twirler good support liable to take a tumble.

NOODLE ISLAND WINS DISTRICT HONORS

The East Boston High track team scored 52 points in the running events of the fifth annual outdoor district school meet held at Tech Field which added to the 52 points scored in the field events on Friday gives a total of 105 points and first honors in this annual affair.

Brighton High, a though scoring but seven points in the running events had piled up 39 in the field events took second place with a total of 46 points. Hyde Park won third honors with a total of 39 points, 25½ of which were made in the running events.

G. W. Clark of Hyde Park completed the 440-yard intermediate in :52 4-5 second, breaking the old record of :55 seconds, held by John Hill of Brighton and Willard Tibbetts of South Boston.

R. L. Smith of Boston Trade School clipped a fifth of a second off the 75 yard Intermediate race, running the distance in :33.5 seconds. The old record of :34.5 seconds was held by Albert Sonis of East Boston and Albert Horan of Hyde Park.

Coach Fred L. O'Brien of East Boston put on the same well balanced team that won the indoor district meet. His tracksters won points in all three divisions and were never threatened. Brighton High fell down in the running events.

The Hyde Park seniors won two places in the 100, and first honors in the 440. Added to the points of the intermediates and juniors, they were second best in the running events.

ONE OF GOLF'S LONG HITTERS

Jack Shea

Jack Shea, professional at the Kernwood Country Club of Salem, is one of the longest hitters in the ranks. His game may not be so well rounded as that of some professionals who play more and teach less. Jack is also one of the most popular golf instructors and is so busy giving lessons that he hardly plays a round week.

His knowledge of golf is not confined to the art of playing as one may conclude who has played the Salem course within the last month, the present condition of the links being far ahead of any of the leading New England courses.

Jack's familiarity with golf upkeep has proved to be a great factor in his success at Kernwood and the amateurs of the State who are competing in the State championship at this course in June have a great treat in store for them.

CONCORD EVENS UP WITH MIDDLESEX

Middlesex looked the winner when it made three runs in the ninth, but Pollard's wildness allowed Concord to tie the count when the high school boys came to bat in their half. Maloney of Concord smashed a two-bagger, the only extra base hit of the game, and scored a moment later on a pretty single by Todd.

Dedham Has Children's Meet

LYNN ENGLISH SEEKS GAME WITH NEWTON

By FRED C. LANE.

The first challenge of the season to be issued to Newton High, champions of the Suburban League, comes from Coach George Sexton of the Lynn English nine. The North Shore team has practically won the title in this race, having won ten games without a loss.

An effort was made to play Cambridge Latin last season when the Cantabs were first to the wire, but the financial demands of the Cambridge authorities could not be met.

Coach Sexton in his challenge says he is willing to leave all matters to the Newton authorities as to date and place. No doubt Newton will play at least one post-season game, and from the record on the diamond, Lynn English is the team entitled to a crack at the Garden City champions.

Dorchester Master Bars Star Twirler Locke

This announcement comes as a blow to the Dorchester team's hopes of winning the City Championship. Locke has been the pitching sensation at Dorchester for the past two years, and was looked upon as the main cog in the machine.

The suspension carries no definite time, but according to those closely connected with the affair he has been asked to turn in his uniform.

Three Big Games in North Shore League

North Shore League teams will take the prominent part in scholastic sports today, staging three games that will bring out a flock of fans that are still interested in this league quarrel.

Brighton Out for Two Over West Roxbury

West Roxbury and Brighton will play at Walpole street this afternoon and this should prove the best contest among the city schools. The Brighton boys have whipped Wee Roxbury in an early season start and are out to repeat that win today.

Cambridge Latin Meets Rindge in Track Duel

The big opportunity for Cambridge Latin to even matters for their loss on the ball field to Rindge Tech is accorded the track team this afternoon when both schools will engage in their annual dual meet.

Cambridge Latin is the favorite because of its strength in running events. Rindge will present a strong contingent of youngsters in the field events, hoping to even up for the deficiencies of the dash men.

Shakespeare's Vocabulary

SHAKESPEARE had an amazing vocabulary, even for present times. Sir Johnson Forbes-Robertson says that in his plays there are 24,000 words, as compared with 7,000 in the Bible and 9,000 in Homer. He wrote twenty-six plays.

Souls for Sale

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

THE STORY SO FAR

DESTINY had dealt savagely with beautiful young Remember Steddon, daughter of a Massachusetts clergyman. She had given her love to Elwood Farnaby, with whom she sang in the choir but he was unable to marry her, being the sole support of his drunken father's large family. Dr. Brotherick discovers there is reason for a marriage, but while he is urging this on the girl, Elwood is fatally injured in an automobile accident. Elwood dies and Dr. Brotherick fixes up a yarn to tell Remember's parents she goes to California by his advice and meets prominent movie people on the train. The train is nearly wrecked by an accident to the locomotive and has to stop in the desert. There Mem gets acquainted with Tom Holby, a movie star. She is met in Tucson by Dr. Galbraith. She writes her parents that she has married "Mr. Woodville."

AND she rode with him across the sage-spotted sands, toward the brown mountains, and found there a cabin in a dark grove. And it was her new home. She was mistress of it, but he was the master of her, a ruthless, laughing husband, who would not be denied, but mocked her fears and made her his wife, broke her to his will as he broke the wildly resisting broncho.

She ran, pursued but overtaken, and woke with a start, spent and panting, and stared at the drowsy passengers.

She was astounded and a little disappointed to find herself still on the same car. His hot cheek against hers was only the sunbaked windowpane tickling with the rain of the blown sand.

She fought off the swooning drowsiness that dragged her back to a realm of fancy, and devoted herself to the stern task of arranging a pleasing death for her short lived bridegroom.

Fear of Discovery

Fear of discovery was as acute in Mem's heart as if she were planning genuine homicide. Some authors have went over the slaughter of their creatures; some have rejoiced in their murder as a fine art. But Mem was a beginner, a bungler. She was bound to make a bad job of it, and she could not trust her imagination.

After an hour or two of deep study that only increased her sense of hopeless floundering, she went to her luncheon in the dining car. It was hard to play executioner on an empty stomach. On her way back to her place she saw on an empty seat a newspaper. The owner had plainly finished with it and tossed it aside.

It was the Los Angeles Times, an enormous budget filled with the proud expression of the fastest growing city in the world, a city tumultuous with prosperity at a time when nearly every other city in the world was quivering under the aftermath of the World War.

Mem found (as is to be expected in any newspapers but those curious documents built to suit the ostriches who believe in concealing reference to crime and other departures from monotony) many accounts of murders, robberies, accidents, and other manifestations of human fallibility.

Magnificent burglaries were properly chronicled. Nearly every day somebody seemed to loot a mail train or a bank messenger of the ransom of a dozen dukes. Highway robbery was bringing back the glorious days of Dick Turpin, Jonathan Wild, and Claude Duval. Those who stood quietly behind their counters had drama brought to them on the tip of a pistol, those who motored along quiet roads or city streets were hailed from other cars by fleeting highwaymen or highway women; or they discovered with their searchlights somber gentlemen (or ladies) whose watchword was becoming a national greeting —"Put 'em up!"

Hands in Air

It seemed as if one half the world had its hands in the air while the other half went through its pockets, cash drawers, suitcases, or small pocketbooks.

Los Angeles, as one of the busiest cities going, naturally had its share of this industry, further more, its thronged streets were superior to every other city's in the number of people killed and maimed by the floods of automobiles.

Mem thought of Los Angeles as the missionary thinks of Benin, Somaliland, Milan, or Shanghai, or some other centre of crime, though none of the foreign murder mills has ever approached the American grist.

In the Times she discovered a number of suggestive deaths. Here was the story of a man who slipped into the swollen Colorado River, which was running one of its annual amoks. Here were a hundred people in Colorado State swept out of their homes and drowned by a torrent. Here was a rich man who neck was broken in an overturned car; here was a score effaced in a collision between an auto bus and an electric train. Here was a New Yorker shot dead in his pajamas as he sat with a lapful of morning letters. Here was a man found buried in his own cellar; here was a mid-Western gentleman for whose murder his wife and his stepdaughter were being tried, the allegation being that they had filled him with arsenic taken from fly paper. Here was a man who hired a hobo to play a practical joke on his wife and pretend to hold them up in their doorway; then the amazing dramatist shot the hobo dead, shot his wife dead, an announced that he had taken part in a pistol duel with a highwayman. The cynical police found a few flaws in his glib story and wrung a confession from him.

He was a very religious young man, too, and superior to all small vices. And the jury at his first trial disagreed as to his guilt, since he repudiated his confession. A second jury found him guilty, but he pleaded insanity and deferred the penalty. Altogether an original penline in crime. Mem envied him his ingenuity.

Religious Man.

There were instances enough and too many of death's activities in the newspapers. Here was an aviator doing a moving-picture stunt whose ship caught fire and brought him down burned to a crisp. Here was a man killed in his automobile by a big tree falling over him.

There was such an embarrassment of riches that Mem could not select a single method of doing away with Mr. Woodville. She forgot him utterly for a while in a page devoted to the gossip of moving picture studios. She saw that Robina Teele and Tom Holby had come back to Hollywood from a dash to New York for local color, and would soon be going out again "on location," wherever that was. She saw that Vina d'Artois and her husband had reopened their beautiful bungalow in Splendora. She saw that Brian Torchwood had arrived and taken a palatial house for her stay. Maurice Masterclerck had come out on a special train. Many English men and women of fame were on their way, and herds of authors who, being American, were unimportant. Domestic goods are always shoddy, and imported elegant.

Tom Holby broke out impatiently: "Tell me one thing. Is there a Mr. Woodville? Were you ever married?"

Mourning Ready

Mem reverted to her plot. She had her mourning all ready to put on. But here was a new complication. If she arrived in Yuma as a widow she must don her mourning in the train. She would have to retire to the narrow cell of the women's room and make the change there. That was incompetent, but not impossible. It was the only thing to do.

Yet if she went in a maid and out a widow, people might notice the change and wonder; for she had been well observed by the other passengers. A few of them had remarked that it was hot, or asked her if it were not hot. Pretty hot, what?" one woman had said. Mem had thought peevishly what a funny thing it was the way folks used "pretty"—"pretty hot" meant "hideous hot."

She knew that women were like cameras for snapshotting other women's clothes at a glance and remembering them like a photographs. Mem had noticed such things much, yet men had noticed her—two men particularly; one of them a flashy, purulent creature with hard, exploring eyes, that fairly nosed her like a pig's snout, the other a lonely Greek-god thing pleading for pity with a woman hungry stare.

Unusual Cynicism

Mem had a flash of it and evidently bowed her head in mortified

Why is it that we feel so sorry for the loneliness of the timid man and so disgusted with the loneliness of the bold man? The loneliness must hurt both of them about the same but she did not dwell on the thought. Humanity is never going to give the sympathy to the hyena that it wastes on the more destructive rabbit.

What settled Mem's debate was the realization that if she donned her crape on the train it would cause a stir among the people in whose flying parlor she had sat for seven hours or so. And some of them would doubtless be going off at Yuma.

She wondered if somebody would rescue her at the station, as she had seen and announcing himself to be deputy of her father. She hoped not. He could hardly have divined that she was bound for Yuma. Yet she could not feel sure. For all she knew, the first person she met might be somebody from Calvery.

Another point decided her. If she wrote to her father that she had left Tucson as a widow, it would be necessary to push her husband off the train or wreck the train or something; and that would be hard to verify.

There were other reasons for giving herself a little longer experienced of wedded bliss. This marriage was for a purpose.

She grew frantic with indecision. The train seemed to be exerting itself to fling her into Yuma before she could make up her mind. Nothing was easier than to tell a lie, but, great Heavens! how difficult it was to foresee all the things that would happen to it as it went along accumulating complications. Like other works of art, a lie must be all things to all men or be strong enough to endure their idiosyncrasies and their attacks.

In Foreign World

Doctor Brotherick had told her to hold her head up and run—yet not to run. He had thereupon skipped her West to a land of strangers; yet she could neither break away from the ties at home nor break through the nets ahead of her. She was running as fast as she could, but she had leg irons on. She had not left pursuit behind, and the path ahead was all branches and ferns. They were tamed now and no longer matched torture and treachery with the soldiers and the queens.

They were subdued to agriculture and petty commerce. The barbaric souls found expression only in raw, flamboyant colors

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1922 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

UNDOUBTEDLY Carlotta was as astonished as I to find Lyons and the car actually waiting for us when we reached the street after our unimpeded exit from Dud Lee's hotel.

"Did you get Dick West?" was the greeting I gasped to the man who had striven so hard to serve me.

"I told you I'd failed—that I were too conservative, ma'am," Lyons answered dejectedly. "He slipped away no doubt, while we were all fuss'ne over your father's being hurt. But he's gone—clean as a whistle, ma'am, with no sign to show that ever Dick West or a Mr. Richards was boarding up to that swell hotel where I'd a nailed him if I was worth my salt to you or anyone else."

"He's gone," I repeated, utterly cast down for the moment. Then a feeling of sympathy for Lyons came to take the place of that first reaction.

"You did your best, Lyons," I said quietly. "It's I who have blundered tonight."

I wonder if I can ever again be as ashamed as I was when I faced my friend, Carlotta Sturges, and Antony Norrey's chauffeur Lyons, with the unspoken thought between us that my father had been a party to the ruse that had enabled Dick to get away.

Then Lyons blurted out some thing which he might have meant or which may have been a gallant effort to save me from my own thoughts

"Not very loyal to your father, Dick weren't—if you'll excuse me for making so bold, ma'am—to flight out without stopping to see if the poor old gentleman were mashed to a jelly or had come out —with a bone or two whole."

"What makes you think that?" I gasped, turning back on the point of entering the car and waiting for Lyons' reply.

"Didn't young Stafford tell us ma'am, the condition your poor old father lay in, there? Doesn't that show a feeling of sympathy for Lyons came to take the place of that first reaction.

"You did your best, Lyons," I said quietly. "It's I who have blundered tonight."

I wonder if I can ever again be tempted forward to ask one more question of Lyons "Did they say up at the hotel where you went to look for him—that the man they know as Mr. Richards had been sick?"

"They did ma'am," replied Lyons. "And very sick at that. He were compelled to change his rooms only today, as there's too much no so for him on the front of the hotel where he were at first. Took quiet little rooms higher up and on a side-court, where there weren't any racket at all. And they said he were skin and bones and the color of putty, and that when he went about, he leaned heavy on a cane and heavier still on the little man who was takin care of him. It's all too much for me, just now, ma'am, and when I get through hating myself for the way my nerves failed me at things for you I'll try to see what I can do to make up for lost time."

"Thank you, Lyons," I replied gravely. "At least through you we have my poor little father out of the power of a dead friend Home now, please. And tomorrow when I'm not so tired perhaps I can tell you what a friend you've been—and how I feel about it."

"Don't say nothing, ma'am—I failed," muttered Lyons, so miserably that I got a new measure of his loyalty. "And tomorrow I start to meet Norrey, so I shall be able to do nothing at present to make up for how I bungled this job."

"Tomorrow he starts on the trip to get Tony," murmured Carlotta, as if she didn't know she had spoken aloud. Then, with a surge of power which I could almost feel, she pulled herself together and asked quietly: "Anne, is there any thing you want to talk over with me? Anything which will make me—more useful to you"

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

LEARNED folks are always showing how man's ways are filled with woe, how his tears keep daily flowing as he hoes his rocky row. Oh, they tell me joy is fleeting, ever made of frazil stuff, and they never cease repeating life is sure to treat me tough. That old tale of silver linings, they have ripped it to a shred, leaving only vain repinings whirling in my dizzy head. They are men of splendid powers, giants in the world of thought; but, someway, the Springtime showers set their theries all at naught. For, when Maytime tears and Roghing weave a spell about the Earth, I forget the glum hereafter and I give myself to mirth. And when daytime gives me greeting with her garlands and her song, I forget that Spring is fleeting and that Winter comes so long. Yes, with all the roses nodding and with all the pinks in bloom, it is hard to keep on plodding, keeping step with care and gloom. Wise folks tell me every season Earth is going to the bad, but I grin with no good reason, save I can't help feeling glad. When the wind is sort of singing and the skies are tender blue, when the swallow's note comes ringing, then I can't help singing, too. Oh I might believe the croakers, if they'd visit me in Fall; but in Spring they seem like jokers and I can't be blue at all. For I cannot think man's going, wildly speeding to the bad, when the dogwood buds are blowing and the birds and brooks are glad.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL—A NEW SERIAL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

HE entered a kitchen at that moment that she did not flinch when he looked about the small living room with its simple furnishings, its homely appointments.

"I should think you would be glad to be here," he commented. "It looks like a real home—the kind," he added softly, "that my mother had when I was a kid."

"Your mother? Is she—" She hesitated. "Yes," he said, "she is dead. She died when I was a child. She had simple tastes, and, in those days—well, we had a little home something like this."

She was sure that he had started to say that they didn't been poor But his tactfulness had checked him.

She had heard Mr. Hollingshead remark that Dr. Carter's father had made a "mint of money" before he died. However, the son had a lucrative practice.

"My mother was a wonderful cook," he said, with a reminiscent smile. "She made awfully good cake That is not a hint—but I smelled cake when I came in just now."

Adelaide escaped to her feet with a laugh. She was very happy Dr Carter in this mood was certainly delightful. "Dangerously delightful" were the words that came to her mind Then she stifled the ridiculous thought.

"I am going to get you a piece of the cake I just baked," she said gaily, starting toward the kitchen.

"Please let me come with you," he begged.

"I started to make myself some tea, and when the bell rang I forgot all about the kettle," Adelaide explained.

"And you have wasted gas and wasted for your tea all on account of my lengthy call," the man said contritely, "I am sorry."

"I am not!" she declared. Then, with sudden boldness, she asked:

"Would you like a cup of tea?"

"Indeed, I would," he replied. "That is, if you will join me too. I have had no luncheon, and did not mean to stop for one. But this temptation is too strong."

She hurried to make the tea, and, carrying the pot and two cups into the dining-room, set them on the table.

Her companion followed with the still-warm cake. The pair were chatting like old friends

"Won't you have some crackers and cheese?" Adelaide suggested.

Thanks—I will. And you will also," he declared.

She now remembered that she had not meant to eat anything this noon. She also appreciated that her breakfast had been a light one.

"But for your coming, I might have forgotten to be hungry," she remarked

"I suspected as much," was the dry rejoinder.

"Then," she accused, "that was the reason you consented to try my cake!"

"No," John Carter demurred—"not entirely. I was hungry—and I wanted some. It is even better than it smells"

At last he glanced at his watch and rose hastily. "I did not know it was so late," he said, "Let me take those things back into the kitchen for you." But she would not let him touch the dishes, declaring that she must occupy herself until Jennie's return.

"What time shall I call for you tonight?" he asked. "Will ten o'clock do?"

"It really is not necessary for you to come," she evaded.

"Do you object to my coming?" he demanded

"Oh, no," she answered, flushing. "I shall be grateful to you if you will call for me. Only I did not want to inconvenience you."

"That I certainly will not," he said positively, "and I would not have suggested doing so," the man said gravely.

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

It has sometimes been said that famous lawyers of large income are always to be found fighting for (not against) rich, powerful individuals and corporations. Such an accusation cannot be brought against Samuel Untermyer, the New York lawyer. Presidents of industrial corporations or insurance companies or other huge enterprises are treated just as severely as laborers or labor representatives. For no one does he put on kid gloves when he scents a crime.

• • •

Another complaint often made is that in this country there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. Too often illustrations can be cited in support of this allegation. As a matter of fact, it is true that rich men and rich corporations have what might be called a second line of defense which poor men haven't—namely, unlimited money wherewith to summon to their command the ablest legal brains to interpose all sorts of delays and objections and obstructions by the courses of the law.

• • •

After extraordinary labor and energy and determination, Mr. Untermyer succeeded in convicting numbers of business leaders and labor leaders. The crimes fastened upon them are detestable in the extreme, since they resulted in inflicting hardships upon thousands and raising the rates for many articles of food. It afford to pay the excessive rates brought about by the criminal practises of those identified with the building industry.

• • •

But what has happened?

One of the arch conspirators, the man who was mainly responsible for arranging some of the worst practises which had the effect of robbing the poor, when brought up for sentence was let off with a fine of $500!

• • •

Naturally, this extraordinary sequel to Mr. Untermyer's sleepless activities has caused him to conclude that he has taken all his pains in vain. In a letter to the Attorney-General of New York he declares that the $500 fines imposed upon a number of convicted conspirators "have destroyed all hope of enforcing the anti-trust laws as criminal statutes," and that "almost all over 500 cases now pending against individuals and corporations be dropped.

• • •

Mr. Untermyer adds: "We could doubtless secure the imposition of fines amounting to many hundreds of thousands of dollars in these cases, but I have no disposition to act as a collection agency for the government in these repeated demonstrations of the futility of the law.

"The judicial psychology that leads to the conclusion that men of great wealth and power who offend against the criminal laws, and who are convicted after long and patient effort, are sufficiently punished by the humiliation of having had their crimes exposed is one that does not appeal to me.

"It would seem that a man who commits one crime might as well commit a dozen, from the point of view of punishment."

Wall Street Notes

REYNOLDS SPRING, the new so-called radio issue on the New York Stock Exchange, has increased from $10 a share to $30 since the quotation of around 45 in a few weeks.

UNITED RETAIL STORES stock sold on the reaction is said to have been mostly taken by buyers connected with the management.

STANDARD OILS are selling at upward prices because of prevalent belief that big dividends and possible melon-cutting are in the offing.

PURE OIL reports export business in the largest volume in the company's history. In May the concern moved a tank steamer every three days.

COPPER STOCKS appear still to be behind the rest of the market in their advance as a group, traders say. Their record low last August was 22.39; they are now near 38.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC and Central Pacific will never be divorced, despite the court order, according to belief in "the Street." Tentative consolidation plans group these lines with Rock Island.

MACK TRUCK COMPANY April earnings are said to have exceeded those of March, when net profits were above $300,000.

AMERICAN CAR & Foundry's Madison, Ill., plant begins work shortly on an order for 4,430 cars. Working force will be raised from 1,300 to 2,200.

BROOKLYN UNION GAS is selling $5,579,000 10-year 7s at par to stockholders of record June 12.

AMERICAN SMELTING'S advance in price of head from 5.50 to 5.65 proved another spur to the upswinging market as a business straw pointing toward prosperity.

ATLANTIC FRUIT has put off annual meeting of its stockholders until June 14. The company's annual report will be published before that time.

MANY ISSUES AT YEAR'S HIGHS IN NEW YORK

E. J. du Pont de Nemours & Co. rose from 119 to 125, a new record.

Several stocks soared to new highs for 1922. They were American Linseed, Austin Nichols, Inspiration, Chino, Mack Trucks, Mexican Petroleum, Electric Storage Battery, Marland, Pan American and Postum Cereal.

SHIPPINGS SHOW WELL.

Shipping stocks showed up to good advantage. Marine common at 38 advanced over one point to 25%, while the preferred moved up to 85¾. American International jumped 5 for the first time this year. American Ship and Commerce was near its year's high at 24¾, and Atlantic Gulf was fractionally higher at 41.

Mexican Pete led the oil stocks in a vigorous upward movement in the second hour. Continuous improvement in the Mexican oil situation together with the growing world wide demand for petroleum products has placed the leading oil companies in a favorable position as to net earnings.

Mexican Pete in the forenoon pushed through to 141¾ for a new high for this year, while Pan American sold up to a new high at 72¾. Texas Oil at 49¾, Royal Dutch at 64, Sinclair at 36¾, Marland Oil at 37½ and Pure Oil at 33½.

U. S. Food Products, which featured the low priced specialties in the groceries day's market, sold over two points higher to a new high at 97¾, compared to Wednesday's low at 95.

Erie common and preferred soon sold near the year's high levels, reflecting the favorable April statement to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

RAILS ARE MENACED.

Diversion of funds to meet ex-dividend June interest and dividend payments caused further hardening of money rates, call loans opening at 4½ per cent.

The strike menace hovering over the railroad issue is not to be taken lightly. It may come to nothing, but on the other hand is liable to prove very serious, placing railroads in the position strike-affected textiles now occupy.

International Harvester, Baldwin and Studebaker also advanced substantially. Chemicals and fertilizers rose with food specialties, the latter again including Cork Cola and Postum Cereal common and preferred.

Canadian Pacific, Reading first preferred and New York, Chicago & Saint Louis were among the reaction-ary rails.

UNITED SHOE IS OFF IN ACTIVE TRADING

Trading was irregular on the Boston Stock Exchange throughout the day, gains and losses being nearly equally divided.

United Shoe was one of the most active issues, following the recent adverse court ruling. Its losses were fractional in the forenoon, but later it was off over a point.

RED METALS STRONG.

Eastern Steamship swung up a point and a half, close to its high for all time. Ventura Oil made a record of 33.

Island Creek ragged about a point in the forenoon, then recovered its position in the afternoon.

Boston & Maine B dropped another point, and a dismal recession was made by Rutland (preferred. Swift & Co. yielded a point.

TRADING ON CURB.

Trading on the Boston Curb was quiet with few price changes. The most active issues were Eureka and Boston & Montana.

Stocks to show gains were Verde Mines, up a cent at 26; United Verde Extension, up ¼ at 26; Ruby, up a point at 40, and International Sugar, up 2 cents at 77.

Boston Notes

ISLAND CREEK COAL output for May is estimated at 375,000 tons or within 5,000 tons of March, the record month. Possible price limitation can hardly affect its contracts which are placed well ahead.

UNITED SHOE, in the face of an "adverse" court decision Wednesday, held up fractionally and finally closed unchanged.

GREAT FALLS Manufacturing Company's action in passing its dividend was disappointing. It reflects seriousness of the textile strike in New Hampshire. This was once a 12 per cent. stock.

COMMONWEALTH TRUST COMPANY says: We appear to have discovered the country can go ahead and resume normal conditions of business and banking in spite of foreign disorganization."

KIDDER, PEABODY agent announced 60,000 shares of Boston consolidated Gas Company 6½ per cent. preferred stock at auction for 103¾.

PIGGLY WIGGLY CORPORATION which has 1,700 retail grocery chain store invasion of Boston, has increased its capital from $5,000,000 to $60,000,000 via Delaware certificate route.

REVERE SUGAR REFINERY has again advanced sugar prices, this time 10 points to 5.70, in line with raising by rival concerns.

G. J. WHELAN'S position in the $157,000,000 tobacco merger is a subject of speculation on "the Street." Mr. Whelan made his start in the drug business in New England.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD 6s are being offered by New York houses at prices to yield from 5 to 5.72, according to maturity date.

MOTHER LODE MINES production in April was $.21,401, pounds of copper, compared with 2,017,035 in March. For first four months the output was greater than in any corresponding period in company's history.

U. S. SHIPPING BOARD MAY BE ABOLISHED

Contemplated by Harding Unless Ship Subsidy Bill Is Passed

By International News Service.

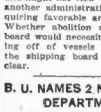
Washington, June 1.—Abolition of the United States Shipping Board in the event Congress fails to pass the ship subsidy bill is contemplated by President Harding, it was learned authoritatively today. An administration spokesman belonging to the President's inner circle is authority for the statement that President Harding fails to see what use the shipping board could serve if the bill providing for a merchant marine is rejected by Congress.

President Harding does not contemplate another message to Congress on the opposed Harding-Lasker Merchant Marine but will continue to hold daily conferences with administration leaders in Congress and with officials of the shipping board.

Unfavorable sentiment on the Ship Subsidy Bill has cropped up in the House, Floor Leader Mondell said today. He felt sure, however, there were enough votes to pass the bill.

He foresees as the only obstacle to immediate action on the measure the fact that the Lower House is "wearied of waiting" for the Senate to emerge from its tariff wrangle and might not view with enthusiasm another administration measure requiring favorable and quick action. Whether abolition of the shipping board would necessitate the auctioning off of vessels now owned by the shipping board was not made clear.

B. U. NAMES 2 NEW DEPARTMENT HEADS



Guillermo Hall.

Professor Guillermo Hall, professor of Spanish and secretary of trade, was appointed head of that department by Dean Everett W. Lord of the College of Business Administration of Boston University, it was announced today. Professor Hall was instrumental to Boston from the Havana Branch of Boston University last February. He will also act as chairman of the language department.

Professor Hall was formerly director of the Mexican Trade Bureau, and was Belgium Relief delegate during the war. He is the author of a number of books dealing with foreign trade and the teaching of Spanish.

Professor G. Wilfred Fisher will head the department of accounting at the College of Business Administration. It was announced. He has taught accounting in both college and secondary schools, and has practiced as a certified Public Accountant under the laws of Massachusetts since 1905.

TEACHER FINED $500 IN BOY SCANDAL CASE

Worcester, June 1.—Loftus C. Stanford of Princeton, formerly a teacher in the exclusive St. Mark's school at Southboro, was fined $500 in Superior Court after he had pleaded guilty to charge of assault and battery on Winfield Blum, a boy, in his home at Princeton, on April 19.

This is probably the final chapter in the scandal that shook the school. Stanford "resigned" his position with the school following his arrest in connection with the boy's case, "because of ill health."

POLICE SEEK MISSING WEST NEWTON GIRL

Police of Boston and surrounding cities and towns are searching for Miss Florence Spaulding, twenty-five years old, of No. 61 Eddy street, West Newton. Miss Spaulding disappeared from an automobile in Pemberton square Wednesday afternoon between 4:30 and 5 o' clock.

The girl left the car during a brief absence of her companions. She is about five feet tall and has blue eyes and a light complexion. Relatives said she has recently been suffering from mental trouble.

WIFE GETS ONE CHILD, HUSBAND OTHER THREE

Fitchburg, June 1.—Mrs. Emma Jackiewicz was awarded the custody of her youngest child and her husband, Dominick Jackiewicz, whom she sued for separate support, was given three older ones by Judge Chamberlain in Probate court. The woman said that her husband beat her and threatened her life. She said he purchased a revolver at her. He replied by accusing his wife of riding with other men in automobiles.

THREE JAILED AFTER BATTLE IN CEMETERY

Lawrence, June 1.—Three men were arraigned in district court here following a fist fight which turned a cemetery gathering into a battle royal. Two of the men were fined. They are: Jack Waldstein of No. 243 Chestnut street, Chelsea and Ben Karron of this city. The third man, Hyman Star, escaped without fine.

According to the story told in court, the trouble started at funeral services for Abraham Specter at his former home on Perry avenue.

PLOT TO CURE FLAPPER WHILE SHE'S YOUNG

New York, June 1.—One hundred and thirty mothers of Brooklyn have united to tackle the flapper problem. Their organization, known as the Parents' League, has devised a code of "blue laws" for young people's parties, which are intended to restore the simple life for those in the dangerous ages of sixteen and eighteen, and to prevent the sub-flappers from ever acquiring the taste for extreme forms of amusement.

There shall be no early morning jazz, no unchaperoned motor rides, no lunch-counter breakfasts—none, in short, of the extravagances which have made the "wild young people" of other cities the subject of so much parental and editorial concern.

Limit hours for evening parties from 8:30 to 12.

Hold parties only Saturday and Friday nights.

Have chaperones for all parties. Have chaperonage for return home.

Must not:

Serve refreshments after dances.

Have all games supervised.

Terminate parties at 8:30 p. m.

Mrs. F. O. Affeld of No. 113 Willow street, president of the league, said that the code had worked very well so far as the sub-flappers were concerned, although it was harder sledding with those who had reached the advanced age of seventeen and had formed their habits.

CONVICT'S CONFESSION FREES SO. BOSTON MAN

Through the confession of another prisoner in a Massachusetts prison, Frederick Aitri of South Boston, has been freed from the county jail at Portland, Me., where he was awaiting trial on a larceny charge.

Salvatore P. Sodaro signed an affidavit stating that he committed the crime with which Aitri was charged and that he gave some of the proceeds of the robbery to Aitri. The latter did not know of the break.

On account of the lack of application for the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Camp Devens during August, the time of applying has been extended till June 30. There are only 1,000 applications so far for this training, when 3,000 are wanted.

Chaplains Edward Sliney of the 12th Infantry and Major Harry Fraser of the Coast Artillery, Boston Harbor, have been assigned the duties of soliciting applicants for this service.

SECOND BATTALION OF FIFTH TO DRILL OFF TOMORROW

The second battalion of the 5th regiment will leave the armory base, South Boston, tomorrow morning for Camp Devens. The first battalion left today and the third battalion Monday. Colonel Harry E. Knight and his staff are now stationed for the Summer at Devens. The 7th field artillery from Camp Dix, N. J., with 351 horses, is also at the camp.

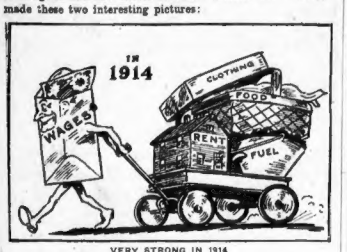
It Is Not How Much You GET

It's How Much You Can Buy With What You GET

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Mr. Baer, the cartoonist, who represented North Dakota in Congress and now makes first-class cartoons for "Labor," made these two interesting pictures:



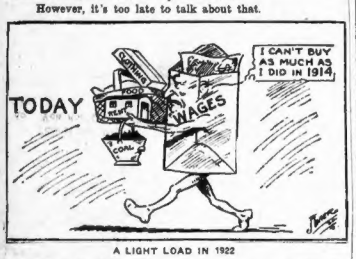
VERY STRONG IN 1914

This shows, with little exaggeration, what could be bought with a man's wages before the war. He didn't have as much MONEY, but he had peace of mind, he was less worried. Incidentally, although Mr. Baer doesn't mention it, he had not at that time formed the silk-shirt habit.

A good deal depends on what your wages will BUY, also on what you think your wages OUGHT to buy.

During the war excitement and prosperity many thought that cotton shirts were out of date. That was one of their mistakes. If they hadn't thought so, and hadn't switched so suddenly from cotton to silk, some of them would be less worried now, and have money in the bank.

However, it's too late to talk about that.



A LIGHT LOAD IN 1922

This is Mr. Baer's idea of what the wages of 1922 will do. You don't need a wagon to carry home what you can buy. The idea is so plain it doesn't need any words written about it.

If the Egyptians had made cartoons, which they did in a sort of way in honor of their rulers, they might have made a cartoon just like this.

It is always said that everything that a man needs gets dearer as his wages go higher, and it is true.

The world is arranged in such a way as to give the average man as much as it takes him to LIVE, no more. It should be remembered, however, by the intelligent, that although the old so-called "Iron Rule" prevails, conditions are getting better.

Everything is dear, but the man working for fair wages is able to have a bathroom, phonograph and a good stove in his house. And very often, which would have seemed miraculous twenty-five years ago, he has an automobile in the shed outside.

Lloyd George's Power

Our Public Men Lack It. Reasons

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The British Commons expresses confidence in Lloyd George by 235 votes to 26. That Welshman does not seem to have lost his hold.

While other world statesmen have crumpled up, disappeared, gone to pieces more or less paralyzed, Lloyd George goes ahead, fighting and winning.

He makes friends with Russia when that seems wise, he fights France when he thinks France unwise, he gets them all together, beams and smiles at intervals. And WHO is he, this Lloyd George that actually DID win the war, the man without whom the Hohenzollerns would now rule Europe?

He was a little Welsh boy of Celtic blood, with a wide head and a democratic spirit.

He had no "ancestors" and no American "pull." He didn't sell himself to any interests, as Americans often must do before getting office. He didn't prove that he had no opinions of his own, as Americans also must do very often before they can get anywhere in politics.

He became Secretary of the Exchequer and told the rich men of England: "You want the biggest navy and all that? You shall HAVE it, only I am going to make YOU pay for it instead of taxing the poor in the good old way."

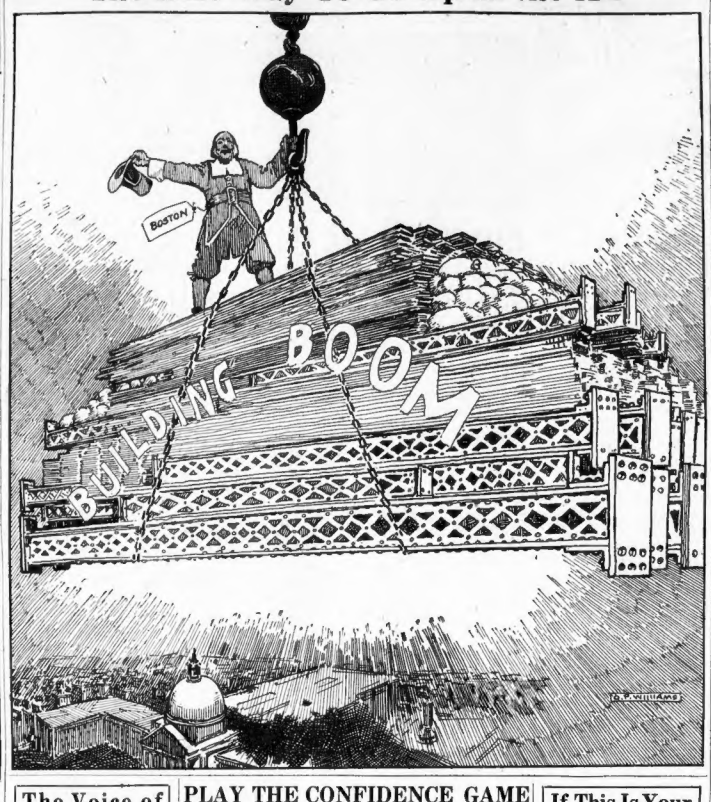
Too bad we can't arrange to have such men come to the top in the United States. We have the material, the men here, but they don't get anywhere. Power and independence are usually killed off in the process that prepares our men for office.

If you doubt that you don't know much about the government of your own country.

What about Roosevelt, do you ask? Do you think the politicians would ever have let him be President? They made him Vice-President to get rid of him. He was made President by the man that killed McKinley.

The Best Way To Go Up in the Air



The Voice of New England

A Rough Conductor

Editor Boston American:

Conductors on the Boston Elevated are getting pretty "fresh, especially on the East Boston Tunnel route to Orient Heights. I saw one Tuesday night grab a woman by the arm and demand in a loud voice why she had not paid her fare. This was after she was seated with her escort who had dropped her fare with his in the box. Later, admitting he had been wrong, he apologized, but her arm is black and blue from his rough handling. I have his number. C. G.

Not a Type

Editor Boston American:

There has come to our attention an item in your issue of the 17th inst., under the caption, "Radio to Have a Universal Language," in which there occurs the sentence ". . . . Eskimos can phone . . . for the latest style B. V. Ds . . . ." The item in question does not refer to our product bearing the red woven "B. V. D." label, and consequently the use of "B. V. D." was intended to indicate to the reading public a style or type of athletic underwear in general. However, you are possibly not aware that "B. V. D." is not a style or type of, or synonym or generic term for athletic or other underwear; that "B. V. D." is our trade-make and may only be used in connection with the sale of our product bearing the red woven "B. V. D." label.

A Mother's Plea

Editor Boston American:

Fighter for the people, come to the rescue! Defeat the plan for a psychopathic hospital in Northampton suburbs, a wilderness far removed from the people. How will the mothers ever be able to get there? Awful expense and long hours riding in dusty trains. How can they do it? If "Cal" Coolidge had any warm blood in his veins, he would not have suggested that far-away place. Help the mothers!

A SUFFERING MOTHER.

From a Mother

Editor Boston American:

I ask the legislators who have a mother living, which one they love better; a mother, or a rich stranger, or a baseball player?

There is a song: "There is No Other to Take the Place of Mother." If it is so, why are we put aside and forgotten?

Then comes the day that the Legislature voted for that despotic law—Daylight-Saving. The rich people and sports are the preferred. What kind of importance and value have we then? We are humiliated by such indifference. We are forced to be up at 4 a. m. and work harder all day. Who is going to plead for us?

AFFLICTED MOTHER.

New Bedford.

Gay Dances

Editor Boston American:

Having in mind the good your paper has done in other communities, I am writing you to call your attention to some of the dances which are being conducted by irresponsible persons in this county and which are fast undermining the health and morals of the young people, such dances usually ending in a drunken orgy. You could best understand the truth of this assertion by a personal investigation by one of your representatives. The dances to which I refer occurred at Guilford Centre, one on the Dexter road, about two miles from Sangerville, and the dance at the new Kenny pavilion in Wellington.

My motive in writing you has been prompted by the good people of this neighborhood, and I trust that this letter may result in doing much good.

H. S. SCHURMAN.

No Good Objection

Editor Boston American:

I am in favor of the daylight saving primarily because I have not yet heard or read in your columns one good reason why anyone is not pleased with it, and if it were not good surely someone of the objectors could find a real reason to object. It is ridiculous, outrageous, etc., but no reason therefore.

Some seem to think it is contrary to God's laws but I fail to find where the law of God gives the Eastern Standard as official Nor do I know of any stipulation that Central time should be one one hour later, Rocky Mountain time two hours later, etc.

PLAY THE CONFIDENCE GAME TO THE UTMOST

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

THERE are many varieties of confidence game. In its unpleasant sense, that usually involves some kind of cheating, whereby your confidence is tricked and you pay in money the price for your trustfulness.

For the continuous encouragement of the unscrupulous capitalizers of confidence you have the assuring proverb that a new crop of suckers is born every minute.

Some time ago the writer offered an article called "Be Unafraid to Retrace Your Steps." Therein he suggested the need for that tactical courage which would enable you to change your course when you started in the wrong direction or found yourself on the wrong road.

He pointed out how persons and peoples alike are apt to make the mistake of permitting their foolish pride to lead them to persist in a course or a career which they know to be wrong.

And the plea was made for that strength of will which enables you to retrace your steps and take the Road of Right.

From San Francisco comes the following letter: "Would you favor me some time and write as good an article about the person who will not listen to her or his own judgment?

"I have in mind a young couple—it's an old story—who married, and in time a son came. Finally the woman listened to her mother and would-be friends and left her husband.

"The young mother, seeking the freedom she desired, obtained a divorce and went to work in an office, still listening to friends who were there for advisory purposes only.

"Then realization came. 'Freedom' in an office with sham and no real home did not compare with the home she had left and her husband who loved and grieved.

"Isn't there a way to make people know that their own judgment is the one to use, not any other's? I would like to see an article on this similar to the 'Be Unafraid to Retrace Your Steps' article."

There is not much to be added to that sincere letter with its simple theory based upon sad experience. What is desired and desirable is the emphasis of the question itself.

Alas! the strongest of us are likely on occasion to be weak-willed and more ready to follow the judgment of others than our own.

Be a confidence man or woman! Play the confidence game bravely, believing in your capacities and powers. YOUR MIND can decide as effectively as the other fellow's.

For God and You are still and always a working majority.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

PEOPLE born today are noted for the variety of their interests and for the vehemence with which they can champion any cause they believe in. Their lives are unusual because they are usually derivable into two successive and contradictory periods—of experience and of accomplishment and the turning point may come at any time.

Changes contemplated today will undoubtedly be successful, and they will bring spiritual as well as material benefit.

A child born today will be clever and original, but somewhat of a solitary disposition until fully matured.

FAMOUS PERSONS BORN ON THIS DAY:

Brigham Young—Leader of the Mormons.

John Nelson, Attorney-General.

John Marshall Harlan—Justice U. S. Supreme Court.

Hugo Munsterberg—Psychologist.

General Arthur MacArthur—U. S. Army.

ARE YOU EXERCISING YOUR BRAIN?

Are you resting on the fact that you stood at the head of your classes in high school and have been counted always an A Number One student?

You have been out of school many years, and in all that time you have not undertaken anything serious in the way of mind work.

You are busy—yes—busy with committees, club doings, social duties, and you sew and embroider a bit.

But to undertake to learn another language, to take up a science, to study psychology, higher forms of hygiene, music, or any one of various forms of art—you just haven't got the time.

Do you know that, married or single, you are making the biggest mistake of your life if you are not using your brain, your mental powers, to delve into and solve some problems which would tax your mentality?

The less you use your brain to work out solutions of definite questions, the less you will be able to master any mental question later.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

MELANCTHON W. BURLEN, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, says that the employes of his department are hot in temperature, both Winter and Summer, but he also makes it clear that it is not "political temperature." The cause is that the boilers of City Hall Annex are situated directly beneath his department.

MAYOR CURLEY'S old bailiwick delights in having Indian names for social and political clubs. First, it was Tammany, then Tomahawk and now it is Wan-Eta. If you don't believe it, look over the door at No. 376 Dudley street, Roxbury, where Chief Powhatan's head stood for years.

The position of medical inspector in the health department of the city seems to be a desirable position. There are two vacancies at present on the board. Twenty-five doctors have already made application.

JOHN N. COLE, State commissioner of public works, has learned from his inspectors that a single auto truck, with narrow metal rims and heavily overloaded, caused $13,000 damage to the State road between Boston and Providence. He will be powerless to prevent such damage unless the Legislature passes a law against overloading.

It must please the members of the American Legion to know that there is one young man who is devoting much of his time towards the success of the organization. We understand that JAMES MULLEN, JR., assistant clerk of the Charlestown Court, has just celebrated his 250th speech in organizing auxiliaries of women members.

Considerable work for scores of laborers and pavers, including many war veterans, is made available in the numerous minor paving jobs that have been started in various parts of the city by JOSEPH A. ROURKE, commissioner of public works. This work is being done by the city forces and amounts to an expenditure of nearly $20,000.

The latest chatter from "those in the know" is that CONGRESSMAN PETER F. TAGUE will positively be a candidate for re-election for Congress in the Tenth District and that he has definitely decided to retire as a possibility as fire commissioner of the city. City Hall deposeters have it that CHAIRMAN JOHN H. DUNN of the street commissioners will be the next fire commissioner.

GARRET P. SERVISS ON THE SUN'S CHARIOT

By Garrett P. Serviss

WE often marvel at the gigantic power displayed by the sun in holding planets in their orbits. The force expended in curbing the earth alone amounts to thirty-six hundred thousand millions of millions of tons!

We are less impressed by the counterpull of the planets on the sun, although it is sufficient to make that giant globe stagger and reel in an ever-changing curve, which at times swings him hundreds of thousands of miles out of the centre. However, of his team of eight planets, four only are powerful enough to really sway him in his seat, and but one, Jupiter, is able, acting singly, to lift him clear of it.

At the present time (near the beginning of June) the planets are so arranged with reference to their directions from the sun that they compel him to turn around a centre of gravity that is situated about 270,000 miles outside his surface, in the direction of the constellation Virgo. Jupiter and his big ringed brother, Saturn, are chiefly responsible for this strain upon the gravitational reins that forces the sun to brace backward so sharply.

Like Teams of Horses

They are not far apart in the same quarter of the sky, so that they may be figured as pulling like a pair of horses a little shy of one another, while farthest west Neptune, the most distant of the planets, adds the major part of his pull to theirs. Venus and Mercury furnish a slight contribution from their feeble efforts, but the Earth and Mars, like playful colts, pull off in a right-angle direction, while Uranus, in nearly the opposite quarter from his big brothers, and whose force is not to be despised, tries to keep the solar driver erect, but the effort is wasted.

The explanation of all this is found in the principle, derived from the law of gravitation, that bodies cannot be free to move under the control only of their mutual attraction, without both being simultaneously in motion. The planets "pull" the sun just as the sun "pulls" the planets, the force in each case being proportional to the masses.

So, if we imagine the sun placed on one end of a gigantic lever and the planet Jupiter on the other end, knowing that the sun's weight is 1,048 times that of Jupiter, where should the fulcrum be placed in order to have them balance them? Evidently, from what we have just said above, it should be placed 1,048 times as far from the centre of Jupiter as from the centre of the sun. But, the total distance between the centres of the sun and Jupiter, where they are at their mean distance apart, is 483,000,000 miles. If we divide this by 1,048 we shall get the distance that the fulcrum should be from the centre of the sun. It comes out about 460,000 miles.

Gravitational Pull.

Now, as we have already indicated, the position of the fulcrum corresponds to the location of the centre of gravity between the two bodies; when we consider the effects of their gravitational pull upon one another. In other words, it is the point around which they must revolve. If left free to move under the sole force of their mutual attraction. Accordingly our calculation proves that the sun and Jupiter both revolve around a point 460,000 miles from the sun's radius—miles from the sun's centre (and 482,540,000 miles from Jupiter's centre.) But the sun's radius (half diameter), is only 400,000 miles, so that the point around which its centre moves is situated 27,000 miles above its surface in the direction toward Jupiter.

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

All they need is an introduction and a compass.

They don't care whether a man is good looking or not as long as he has an expense account.

June is supposed to be the month of love, but no girl is going to let love stand in the way of her getting married.

The average girl's ambition is to be a Summer bride and after that her ambition is to be a Winter divorcee.

The men aren't superstitious about getting married in June. They figure that June is just as unlucky as any other month.

The only disadvantage in getting married in June is that it doesn't leave you in doubt as to your financial condition the following Winter.

This is also the month of church bells. Church bells are the tolls of marriage, and—oh, the tolls!
